Rare Disease Brings Boyle's Column To End

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — There are times when a man should go full speed and there are times when he should slow down.

After writing some 7,680 columns in more than 30 years it seems to me the time has come to slow down. So, from now on I have decided to become an intermittent columnist. Like an old hen, I will lay fewer eggs and spend more time brooding.

Several factors impelled me to this decision.

First, if I have failed to make a better world in 30 years, perhaps I've tried to rush things and now need to plan for a more systematic attack.

Second, unlike a dairy cow, a daily philosopher is not valued directly by his output. Overproduction is undervalued. The oracle is best remembered who speaks least.

Thirdly, my conscience began to bother me. It takes a lot of pulpwood to print nearly 8,000 columns in several hundred newspapers over three decades, and my dreams have been haunted by visions of countless denuded hills, bare and treeless.

Finally, the biggest reason I decided to cut down on my regular output of columns is that I became the first guy on my block to acquire a rare and little known malady — amyotrophic lateral sclerosis.

This is often called "Lou Gehrig's disease" because it benched a generation ago the famous "Iron Horse," the first baseman for the New York Yankees.

It is a mysterious affliction of the spinal cord which cripples a body through atrophy of the voluntary muscles.

The disease is progressive and terminal within two to five years after onset. Its cause is obscure and there is no treatment for it. Only two nice things can be said about it. It doesn't affect the mind and it is more fatiguing and uncomfortable than painful.

The irony of it to me is that after surviving three wars without a scratch I come down with an ailment that on the average strikes only one out of every 100,000 people. It is so rare you couldn't organize a reunion of ALS sufferers.

I hate to relinquish my daily column because writing it has been more than bread and butter to me. It has been a magic adventure that enabled me to meet thousands of people, 67 countries and every continent but the Antarctic.

I turned 63 yesterday. I am somewhat abashed that my wordage output is four times that of William Shakespeare. But I savor the fact that it enabled me to have more bylined stories on the main wires of The Associated Press than any other writer in its 126 years.

I guess this is the place to express my deeply felt thanks to all the readers who through all the years made the journey with me and shored up my spirits with kind letters of cheer, suggestion and criticism.

See you later.

FEO Concedes Gas Allocations Plan A Shambles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal energy officials ruefully admit their first month of gasoline allocation is a shambles, the victim of bad data, inexperience, over-reliance on oil company cooperation, and a dash of politics.

"We had envisioned that the oil companies would pick up our allocation method ... but they didn't," John Adger, a Federal Energy Office aide, said in an interview. "They just sat back and watched the show."

Officials say some lessons were learned and the system should work better in March.

That may be its last chance. A decision whether to switch to rationing may be required by mid-April as summer demand approaches.

Meanwhile, the February allocation program was floundering.

The gasoline allocation regulation published Jan. 15 appeared short and simple, taking up only one-third of a page.

It required suppliers to distribute available gasoline to the wholesale and bulk purchasers they had served in 1972.

Gasoline suppliers themselves had to report available supplies, to seek adjustments, and to make proper allocations.

At first, it seemed to work.

On Feb. 16, the FEO issued a detailed listing of each state's reported gasoline availability. It showed wide differences among the states, with Maine apparently destined for a 26 per cent shortage while Minnesota seemed only 3 per cent short.

Although the federal regulations contain no requirement for equal distribution among states, the low-supply states quickly began demanding it, and the FEO accepted the principle.

Within three days, Simon ordered shifts of gasoline from 10 good-supply states to 12 others and the District of Columbia.

Unfortunately, the FEO's 55-page state-by-state estimate was wildly wrong. Simon then sent teams into 20 states and only last Tuesday issued revised estimates for them.

All of the revisions showed available gasoline supplies far higher than previously reported. Sixteen were off by more than 30 per cent; two of them showed errors greater than 60 per cent. The smallest error was 16 per cent.

For the remaining 30 states and four jurisdictions, the FEO still had no revised estimates.

Even the 20 updated estimates represent only reasonable guesses, not hard data. "We have no reliable figures to base it on," said George E. Hall Jr., FEO fuels manager supervising the gasoline program. "It's been a judgment call all the way."

Hall said the February method required reports only from refiners and importers who often had to guess at the distribution of gasoline after it left their hands.

Committee said Wednesday it had no immediate plans to hold public hearings over the dispute between President Nixon and special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski. Jaworski has been stymied in his attempts to obtain access to White House files and has reported his problems to the committee.

Sources said Senate Judiciary members are concerned that such hearings could result in charges of unfair pretrial publicity because Watergate indictments are believed imminent.

Atlanta Editor Kidnaped By 'Revolutionary Army'

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Reg Murphy, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, has been abducted by a group calling itself the Revolutionary Army, the newspaper said today.

Murphy, 40, has been missing since about 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, when he left his home with a man who said he wanted to talk to him about a news story, his wife said.

There have been no demands, but there were indications that a followup telephone call was expected.

William H. Fields, executive editor of Atlanta Newspapers, which publishes the Constitution and Atlanta Journal, said the newspaper received a telephone call about 9:15 p.m. Wednesday.

He said similar calls were made to Atlanta television station WAGA and to Mrs. Murphy.

The FBI in Atlanta and Washington declined comment.

Fields issued a brief statement which said:

"Reg Murphy presumably has been kidnaped. Jim Minter, managing editor of the Constitution, received a telephone call at 9:15 p.m. from someone saying Murphy had been kidnaped by the 'Revolutionary Army.'

"The caller said the Constitution would hear further by other means. Channel 5 TV — WAGA — received a similar call at about 9:20 p.m. Shortly thereafter, Murphy's wife received a call from someone who said, 'If you want to know about your husband, call Jim Minter.'"

Mrs. Murphy said the person who called her did not identify himself in any way.

"I am not sure what to do," she said. "I have no other information. I am waiting now for some kind of contact."

Security was tight at the Journal-Constitution's building. Guards were requiring all employees to show their building passes and to register, even though they were familiar with most of them.

FBI agents searched Murphy's office for clues again today after having made a search Wednesday night, sources at the paper said.

New Demand In Hearst Kidnap

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — Abductors of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst have sent a new communication to the family of the kidnaped girl, a family spokesman said today. Contents of the message were not immediately revealed.

Radio station KCBS in San Francisco said the message, a tape recording, was believed to contain a new demand of $4 million in cash.

The message was reported to have come from the Symbionese Liberation Army, which claimed that it abducted the 20-year-old coed Feb. 4 in Berkeley.

Her father, newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst, already had mounted a $2-million food distribution program in an effort to win her release.

Already, $100,000 worth of food had been stockpiled. The distribution of food to the poor is scheduled to start Friday.

Another San Francisco radio station, KGO, reported that the Rev. Cecil Williams, an intermediary in past SLA communications, received a telephone call Wednesday night. It directed him to a telephone booth, where he found the tape recording.

KGO said that, unlike previous tapes received from the SLA, the new recording did not carry a message from the kidnaped woman.

Miss Hearst turned 20 on Wednesday. Her parents had appealed to the abductors to release her on her birthday as a gesture of good faith.

The FBI agent in charge of the case, Charles A. Bates, had said he had a "seat-in-the-pants feeling" that Wednesday might be freedom day for the pretty coed.

No one outside of the SLA knew whether the food distribution, which starts Friday, would bring about her release or if more demands would be made.

The SLA had demanded originally that Hearst distribute $70 worth of free food to each of California's poor and needy as a condition for negotiations for the girl's release.

Hearst said he could not possibly meet that demand, which state officials estimated would cost some $4 million. He went ahead instead with the $2 million "Peoples in Need" program.

The SLA said it would accept a "good will gesture" from Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner and chairman of the Hearst Corp.

The first free food is expected to be distributed in the San Francisco Bay area Friday, said A. Ludlow Kramer, who is administering the program for the Hearst family. Kramer is Washington's secretary of state.

"We think we have met, and the public has met, the commitment to the SLA," Kramer said.

He said the food assembled in the first 22 hours would feed 20,000 persons. The growing stores included 4,000 loaves of bread, 5,000 quarts of fresh milk, a truckload of turkey and 40,000 pounds of walnuts.

Hearst's "Peoples in Need" is patterned after a food distribution plan launched in Washington state in 1970 after heavy cutbacks in the aerospace industry caused widespread unemployment in the Seattle and Puget Sound area. With Kramer's assistance, the program, "Neighbors in Need" is now operating statewide in Washington.

Hearst's food distribution plan will be financed by $500,000 from the newspaper magnate's personal funds and $1.5 million from a Hearst foundation.

But those funds were barely touched in the first full day of "Peoples in Need" operations, as donations flowed in.

Ohio Energy Plan Compromise Eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The way has been cleared for a bipartisan effort in the General Assembly to agree on legislation to deal with the energy crisis.

Gov. John Gilligan's emergency energy bill was sent Wednesday night to a House subcommittee with an agreement it will seek to hold joint discussions with a Senate counterpart.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee, considering not only the governor's bill, but also an alternative backed by GOP Senate leaders, announced its plans earlier to name a subcommittee.

Rep. Vernal G. Riffe Jr., chairman of the House Select Committee on Energy, appointed his subcommittee after that panel completed its fourth and final public hearing.

"We want to try to work with the Senate to get a bill that can pass both houses," Riffe said in naming Reps. Barney Quilter, D-47 Toledo; Harry J. Lehman, D-16 Shaker Heights; Thomas J. Carney, D-71 Youngstown, Norman A. Murdock, R-21 Cincinnati, and Thomas N. Kindness, R-58 Hamilton.

Some Democrats, like a number of Republicans, are skeptical of the governor's bill. That bill would create a super energy board with unprecedented powers to deal with energy problems, both now and in the future—at least until June 30, 1975.

The same Democrats have described as "more palatable" a board proposed in the GOP bill, of which Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-3 Columbus, is the main sponsor.

Gray's bill provides for a seven-member board made up of six members and the governor. Gilligan's board also would include seven members, named by him with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Weather

Increasing cloudiness and warm today, high, mid 50s. Rain likely tonight and Friday becoming windy. Low, low 40s. High Friday, mid 50s. Probability of precipitation, zero per cent today and 70 per cent tonight and tomorrow. Temperatures Wednesday were: high, 46; low, 28. Winds will be from the southeast today 10 to 15 miles per hour and 15 to 25 miles per hour tonight and Friday.

Among final witnesses at the select committee's hearings was James McIntire, lobbyist for the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants. He opposed a provision that would permit the energy board to curtail business hours.

McIntire told the committee that retail sales in Ohio are dropping as a result of layoffs attributed to the energy crisis. He mentioned Ohio's strong ties with the Michigan auto industry and said "when Michigan catches a cold, Ohio sneezes."

Rep. Robert E. Netzel, R-81 Laura, representing himself, deplored creation of "another agency of bureaucrats who might make the energy crisis even worse than it is." He also urged legislation that would not restrict employers "unduly" for environmental reasons and would permit them to "produce the resources we so badly need."

Maryland Sues For Gas

By RICHARD W. FOSTER
Associated Press Writer

The state of Maryland has filed suit against federal energy chief William E. Simon and 20 major oil companies in an effort to force them to increase the state's monthly gasoline allocation.

"All we're asking for is our fair share," said Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel. He claimed the situation was critical in the state and that industries might have to close if workers couldn't get gasoline to get to their jobs.

The action came Wednesday as authorities in 20 states, including Maryland, worked to decide how to distribute a onetime bonus gasoline allocation given them by the Federal Energy Office for the rest of February.

House Staff Agrees On Impeachable Offenses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The staff of the House Judiciary Committee has agreed on a definition of impeachable offenses that greatly expands the grounds for possible impeachment of President Nixon.

The definition, which includes noncriminal conduct, represents only the views of the committee's top staff lawyers. However, it is expected to have a strong influence on committee members.

The committee will receive the definition today, in a legal brief prepared under the direction of John M. Doar, chief counsel, and Albert E. Jenner Jr., chief minority counsel.

Meanwhile, the Senate Judiciary testify at the upcoming trial of Dwight L. Chapin, another former White House aide. Chapin, accused of lying four times under oath to the Watergate grand jury, is scheduled to go on trial April 1.

He lost his court battle to keep Dean from testifying against him when the judge ruled no confidential attorney-client privilege existed between the two, as Chapin had contended.

And, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica had before him again the issue of the 18½-minute gap in a White House Watergate tape and the findings of technical experts that the gap was created by at least five separate erasures of the tape. That finding was challenged twice by other technical experts, one of whom was a still unidentified expert consulted by President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer James D. St. Clair.

The latest developments in the case prompted Sirica to order both sides to halt further public discussion of the matter.

At separate meetings Wednesday with the Democratic and Republican members of the House Judiciary Committee, Doar and Jenner described their conclusions about impeachment in broad terms, leaving the details for a later briefing.

Doar reportedly told the Democrats at their meeting that the brief's conclusion is blander than some of them may have preferred because of his desire to win Jenner's agreement.

Jenner is reported to have told the Republicans, several of whom are on record as believing only indictable crimes are impeachable, that while an offense need not be indictable, it must be very serious to be impeachable.

Jenner's position is of special importance to the White House. A respected lawyer and the Republicans' own choice to head their impeachment staff, he has great influence with the GOP members.

Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said the brief will be a valuable guide to the members but that each one will ultimately have to make an individual choice.

Doar reportedly told the Democrats at their meeting that the brief's conclusion is blander than some of them may have preferred because of his desire to win Jenner's agreement.

Jenner is reported to have told the Republicans, several of whom are on record as believing only indictable crimes are impeachable, that while an offense need not be indictable, it must be very serious to be impeachable.

Jenner's position is of special importance to the White House. A respected lawyer and the Republicans' own choice to head their impeachment staff, he has great influence with the GOP members.

Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said the brief will be a valuable guide to the members but that each one will ultimately have to make an individual choice.

RCA Presents Awards To Cost Reduction Suggestion Winners

"SUGGESTER-OF-THE-YEAR"—Raymond V. Frosini of Circleville, has been selected as the RCA Electronic Components "Suggester-of-the-Year" by completing eight cost reduction system projects and saving in excess of $161,000 during 1973. Frosini and his wife, Reba, are shown accepting the award from Joseph H. Colgrove (left), Division Vice President, RCA Entertainment Tube Division and John Fanale, Director, RCA Glass Operations.

RCA Electronic Components announced that 1973 Suggester-of-the-Year awards have been presented to four RCA employees for high achievement in the company's cost reduction system (CRS) program.

The RCA Electronic Components cost reduction program provides opportunity to the three major areas within the system-manufacturing, engineering, and administrative-services. This year a tie in the manufacturing category permitted an additional Suggester-of-the-Year award.

The CRS System provides a means whereby salaried employees, who are not normally eligible to receive monetary awards under the RCA Employee Suggestion Plan, may receive recognition for submitting and implementing successful cost reduction ideas.

The four men were selected from 2,353 employees who have submitted cost savings ideas to the program that has netted and estimated savings of over 16 million dollars during the past year.

In addition to receiving citations and trophies symbolizing the creativity and thinking accredited to these men, RCA is also sending them and their wives on a nine-day, all-expense paid trip to either the continent of Europe or the Bahamas.

According to Fred M. Bauer, vice president of finance, RCA Electronic Components "these four men exemplified the type of effort necessary to keep Electronic Components competitive in today's rapidly changing marketplace."

Bauer thanked every Electronic Components plant for their contributions, and reemphasized there is an even greater need for cost reduction. Although some locations fell short of their target in 1973, there is great confidence for a strong rebound in 1974.

Bauer said "that the judging was based, not only on the total amount of dollars successfully saved and the number of suggestions, but also on the uniqueness in ideas and innovations as well as the implementation of the ideas submitted by themselves and others."

During 1973, the four men being honored submitted suggestions which resulted in cost savings in excess of $823,000 or five per cent of the annual Electronic Components CRS effort.

Hear was selected for dedication to his job and efforts to seek out ways to improve processes and reduce costs. His suggestions led to the solution of a major problem in the Marion plant. He completed 25 projects that netted over $562,000 in cost reduction savings.

Frosini won his award for completing eight projects and netting an excess of $161,000 in savings. He continuously tests new materials and investigates processes to reduce costs and improve product quality and yields. Frosini resides at 730 Hawthorne Drive.

Eyman's 15 year involvement in the CRS program culminated in his being selected as an Electronic Components Suggester-of-the-Year. During the past year he completed 27 projects reducing costs in excess of $69,000. All of these savings have been generated in the area of Parts Manufacturing.

Passero was selected for his deep involvement with the production problems of the factory. He completed 19 projects saving in excess of $30,000.

Each plant participating in the CRS Program nominated three candidates representing the categories of engineering, manufacturing and administrative-services. Four of these nominees were the recipients of the top recognition awards.

In addition to the top awards, two additional nominees were cited as Plant Suggester-of-the-Year, and each will receive an all expense paid vacation for two at a resort in the continental United States. They are:

William P. Bauer, Scranton, Pa.; John Jerusik, Woodbridge, N.J.

Eleven other RCA Electronic Components' employees were cited under the CRS program and received merchandise awards of $500 each. They are:

J. Barrett, Harrison, N.J.; E. R. Francis, Circleville; J. P. Grogan, Marion, Ind.; G. J. Guille, Scranton, Pa.; J. M. Higgins, Scranton, Pa.; S. G. Kuras, Harrison, N. J.; C. G. Long, Lancaster, Pa.; M. A. Mittan, Marion, Ind.; M. F. Robinette, Circleville; S. W. Schild, Harrison, N. J.; J. R. Tomcavage, Lancaster, Pa.

Since 1965 the rapid acceleration to the present level of cost reduction in 1973 is a definite indication of the success of the program.

TV Series Helps Dropouts Get High School Equivalent

The Educational Committee of the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce met Wednesday with Roy McKinley to discuss the television series "Your Future is Now". McKinley is the executive director of the Central Ohio Educational Television Foundation, serving 21 counties in the area.

"Your Future is Now" is a television series designed to assist individuals to prepare for a high school equivalency certificate. The series will be presented on WOSU-TV, Channel 34, from Columbus, WPBO-TV, Portsmouth and WGSF-TV, Newark, beginning March 4. The program is a series of 60 thirty-minute programs produced by Manpower Education Institute and is considered to be singularly the largest and most comprehensive educational offering in the history of educational television.

Larry Plum, chairman of the chamber educational committee, had invited several members of the personnel departments of local industries as well as superintendents and guidance counselors from the county and city schools. The purpose of the meeting with McKinley was to introduce the program to the area and try to get promotion from these key people in their particular occupational realm.

McKinley spoke on the three keys to the success of such a program. These keys are need, motivation and opportunity. The need is evident as he cited some 2,657,800 Ohioans do not have a high school diploma and of this figure, 6,749 people in Pickaway County alone have not completed the requirements of high school.

As he pointed out, many of these people ranging in age from 16 to 65, were not actually high school dropouts but rather had never attended high school at all. In earlier years, high school was not required and many students completing the eighth grade considered their public education complete.

Fritz Jacobs stated at the meeting, the second key to solving the problem, motivation, is perhaps the greatest obstacle in the success of the program. Jacobs is the superintendent of the city schools and vice-president of the executive committee of the Central Ohio Educational Television Foundation.

He said this is where employers will have the chance to offer motivational opportunities to those who complete the course.

Discussion was held with the members of the personnel departments of three local industries who attended the meeting. Possibilities of reimbursement for the $10 the viewing student will spend for textbooks which correspond to the television lessons were discussed. Time for time scheduling was also proposed whereby the industrial worker would be given time off for time spent in the viewing of the series. Another proposal was a set up in the plant for the viewing of several persons at one time and perhaps a bonus for those successfully completing the television series and going on to pass the high school equivalency test.

The test itself takes nearly ten hours to complete but contains all multiple choice answers. McKinley reported that the state requirements for passing the test has been lowered in December to keep in line with the standards set by the other states.

This program is a $60,000 venture on the part of the foundation and its backers but as Jacobs pointed out, if only five people successfully pass the test as a result of the series, the effort was not in vain.

McKinley said the final step in the success of the program, opportunity, is here now. He said there was no excuse now for these persons lacking the diploma or equivalency certificate to go on in that state. Anyone 19 years of age, who has been out of school for at least one year and whose high school class has been graduated is eligible for registration in the telecourse.

Completion of the course will more fully prepare the student to take the General Development Tests through which the high school equivalency certificate is granted. Three study guides to be used in conjunction with the telecasts can be obtained by sending $10 to FUTURE, 2400 Olen-tangy River Road, Columbus, Ohio.

Courses will include 26 lessons in social studies, science and literature; 17 lessons in mathematics and 17 in language arts. The first sequence will begin March 4, at 7:30 a.m. and will be shown again on March 6, at 7 p.m. and the same lesson will be repeated for the third time on March 8, at 11 p.m. The lessons will all be repeated in this fashion so that persons working different shifts will all have the same opportunity. Those who can may even watch two or possibly three of the telecasts of the same lesson.

The Chamber of Commerce has compiled a list of persons in this area who may be contacted for further information and for schedule sheets of the telecasts. These people are: Tom Greer, guidance counselor at Westfall High School, 986-2911; Howard Weaver, guidance counselor at Teays Valley High School, 983-2921; James Fletcher, guidance counselor at Logan Elm High School, 474-4712; Doris Gillespie or Richard Fisher, guidance counselors at Circleville High School, 474-4846; County Superintendent's office, 474-2375; Fritz Jacobs, superintendent of the city schools, 474-4340; Larry Plum, 474-3135; Chamber of Commerce office, 474-4923.

RCA Presents Awards To Cost Reduction Suggestion Winners

"SUGGESTER-OF-THE-YEAR"—Raymond V. Frosini of Circleville, has been selected as the RCA Electronic Components "Suggester-of-the-Year" by completing eight cost reduction system projects and saving in excess of $161,000 during 1973. Frosini and his wife, Reba, are shown accepting the award from Joseph H. Colgrove (left), Division Vice President, RCA Entertainment Tube Division and John Fanale, Director, RCA Glass Operations.

RCA Electronic Components announced that 1973 Suggester-of-the-Year awards have been presented to four RCA employees for high achievement in the company's cost reduction system (CRS) program.

The RCA Electronic Components cost reduction program provides opportunity to the three major areas within the system-manufacturing, engineering, and administrative-services. This year a tie in the manufacturing category permitted an additional Suggester-of-the-Year award.

The CRS System provides a means whereby salaried employees, who are not normally eligible to receive monetary awards under the RCA Employee Suggestion Plan, may receive recognition for submitting and implementing successful cost reduction ideas.

The four men were selected from 2,353 employees who have submitted cost savings ideas to the program that has netted and estimated savings of over 16 million dollars during the past year.

In addition to receiving citations and trophies symbolizing the creativity and thinking accredited to these men, RCA is also sending them and their wives on a nine-day, all-expense paid trip to either the continent of Europe or the Bahamas.

According to Fred M. Bauer, vice president of finance, RCA Electronic Components "these four men exemplified the type of effort necessary to keep Electronic Components competitive in today's rapidly changing marketplace."

Bauer thanked every Electronic Components plant for their contributions, and reemphasized there is an even greater need for cost reduction. Although some locations fell short of their target in 1973, there is great confidence for a strong rebound in 1974.

Bauer said "that the judging was based, not only on the total amount of dollars successfully saved and the number of suggestions, but also on the uniqueness in ideas and innovations as well as the implementation of the ideas submitted by themselves and others."

During 1973, the four men being honored submitted suggestions which resulted in cost savings in excess of $823,000 or five per cent of the annual Electronic Components CRS effort.

Hear was selected for dedication to his job and efforts to seek out ways to improve processes and reduce costs. His suggestions led to the solution of a major problem in the Marion plant. He completed 25 projects that netted over $562,000 in cost reduction savings.

Frosini won his award for completing eight projects and netting an excess of $161,000 in savings. He continuously tests new materials and investigates processes to reduce costs and improve product quality and yields. Frosini resides at 730 Hawthorne Drive.

Eyman's 15 year involvement in the CRS program culminated in his being selected as an Electronic Components Suggester-of-the-Year. During the past year he completed 27 projects reducing costs in excess of $30,000. All of these savings have been generated in the area of Parts Manufacturing.

Passero was selected for his deep involvement with the production problems of the factory. He completed 19 projects saving in excess of $30,000. Each plant participating in the CRS Program nominated three candidates representing the categories of engineering, manufacturing and administrative-services. Four of these nominees were the recipients of the top recognition awards.

In addition to the top awards, two additional nominees were cited as Plant Suggester-of-the-Year, and each will receive an all expense paid vacation for two at a resort in the continental United States. They are:

William P. Bauer, Scranton, Pa.; John Jerusik, Woodbridge, N.J. Eleven other RCA Electronic Components' employees were cited under the CRS program and received merchandise awards of $500 each. They are:

J. Barrett, Harrison, N.J.; E. R. Francis, Circleville; J. P. Grogan, Marion, Ind.; G. J. Guille, Scranton, Pa.; J. M. Higgins, Scranton, Pa.; S. G. Kuras, Harrison, N. J.; C. G. Long, Lancaster, Pa.; M. A. Mittan, Marion, Ind.; M. F. Robinette, Circleville; S. W. Schild, Harrison, N. J.; J. R. Tomcavage, Lancaster, Pa.

Since 1965 the rapid acceleration to the present level of cost reduction in 1973 is a definite indication of the success of the program.

TV Series Helps Dropouts Get High School Equivalent

The Educational Committee of the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce met Wednesday with Roy McKinley to discuss the television series "Your Future is Now". McKinley is the executive director of the Central Ohio Educational Television Foundation, serving 21 counties in the area.

"Your Future Is Now" is a television series designed to assist individuals to prepare for a high school equivalency certificate. The series will be presented on WOSU-TV, Channel 34, from Columbus, WPBO-TV, Portsmouth and WGSF-TV, Newark, beginning March 4. The program is a series of 60 thirty-minute programs produced by Manpower Education Institute and is considered to be singularly the largest and most comprehensive educational offering in the history of educational television.

Larry Plum, chairman of the chamber educational committee, had invited several members of the personnel departments of local industries as well as superintendents and guidance counselors from the county and city schools. The purpose of the meeting with McKinley was to introduce the program to the area and try to get promotion from these key people in their particular occupational realm.

McKinley spoke on the three keys to the success of such a program. These keys are need, motivation and opportunity. The need is evident as he cited some 2,657,800 Ohioans do not have a high school diploma and of this figure, 6,749 people in Pickaway County alone have not completed the requirements of high school.

As he pointed out, many of these people ranging in age from 16 to 65, were not actually high school dropouts but rather had never attended high school at all. In earlier years, high school was not required and many students completing the eighth grade considered their public education complete.

Fritz Jacobs stated at the meeting, the second key to solving the problem, motivation, is perhaps the greatest obstacle in the success of the program. Jacobs is the superintendent of the city schools and vice-president of the executive committee of the Central Ohio Educational Television Foundation.

He said this is where employers will have the chance to offer motivational opportunities to those who complete the course.

Discussion was held with the members of the personnel departments of three local industries who attended the meeting. Possibilities of reimbursement for the $10 the viewing student will spend for textbooks which correspond to the television lessons were discussed. Time for time scheduling was also proposed whereby the industrial worker would be given time off for time spent in the viewing of the series. Another proposal was a set up in the plant for the viewing of several persons at one time and perhaps a bonus for those successfully completing the television series and going on to pass the high school equivalency test.

The test itself takes nearly ten hours to complete but contains all multiple choice answers. McKinley reported that the state requirements for passing the test has been lowered in December to keep in line with the standards set by the other states.

This program is a $60,000 venture on the part of the foundation and its backers but as Jacobs pointed out, if only five people successfully pass the test as a result of the series, the effort was not in vain.

McKinley said the final step in the success of the program, opportunity, is here now. He said there was no excuse now for these persons lacking the diploma or equivalency certificate to go on in that state. Anyone 19 years of age, who has been out of school for at least one year and whose high school class has been graduated is eligible for registration in the telecourse.

Completion of the course will more fully prepare the student to take the General Development Tests through which the high school equivalency certificate is granted. Three study guides to be used in conjunction with the telecasts can be obtained by sending $10 to FUTURE, 2400 Olen-tangy River Road, Columbus, Ohio.

Courses will include 26 lessons in social studies, science and literature; 17 lessons in mathematics and 17 in language arts. The first sequence will begin March 4, at 7:30 a.m. and will be shown again on March 6, at 7 p.m. and the same lesson will be repeated for the third time on March 8, at 11 p.m. The lessons will all be repeated in this fashion so that persons working different shifts will all have the same opportunity. Those who can may even watch two or possibly three of the telecasts of the same lesson.

The Chamber of Commerce has compiled a list of persons in this area who may be contacted for further information and for schedule sheets of the telecasts. These people are: Tom Greer, guidance counselor at Westfall High School, 986-2911; Howard Weaver, guidance counselor at Teays Valley High School, 983-2921; James Fletcher, guidance counselor at Logan Elm High School, 474-4712; Doris Gillespie or Richard Fisher, guidance counselors at Circleville High School, 474-4846; County Superintendent's office, 474-2375; Fritz Jacobs, superintendent of the city schools, 474-4340; Larry Plum, 474-3135; Chamber of Commerce office, 474-4923.

Sertoma, LaSertoma Clubs Present Service Awards

Mrs. Frances M. Pritt was recipient of the Service to Mankind Award given annually by Sertoma Club of Circleville. Receiving Youth Service

Awards from LaSertoma Club were Miss Sue Milburn and Paul Dunkle. The invocation preceding the banquet Wednesday at Pickaway Arms was by Bill Crouch, master of ceremonies for the evening.

In presenting Mrs. Pritt to members of the clubs and their guests, Crouch said that she was a person who spends the greater part of her time helping others. She drives for the local Red Cross chapter and even on the past Christmas Eve left her home to take a person to Chillicothe. She allows a certain time for her home, for her church and the balance of her time is free to help others.

Mrs. Pritt, a widow, retired in 1969 after teaching in Circleville Schools for 35 years. One of her letters of recommendation was from Fritz Jacobs, superintendent of city schools. She is a member of National and Ohio Retired Teachers Assn., Pickaway County Retired Teachers, Esther Circle of Community United Methodist Church, Senior Citizens and Berger Hospital Guild 7.

Before returning to Circleville, her home town, Mrs. Pritt worked for the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. paying her way through Capital University in Columbus. At 52 years of age she decided it was time she drove a car instead of being taken everywhere she had to go. Since then she has been making up for lost time and drives about 1500 miles a month.

At the Ohio State Fair in 1972 she was awarded a Senior Volunteer Citation by Governor John Gilligan. At the Senior Center she is available for errands and transportation as well as serving as a member of the Committee on Aging. Mrs. Pritt has volunteered to deliver meals for the Franciscan Community Meals program initiated by the Senior Center.

Mrs. Pritt said that anyone can do what she does if they will just get busy and do it. She enjoyed teaching grades 4-6 in Circleville and now enjoys her retirement. She said that she was able to do the things she does because God has blessed her with good health and for this as well as the many other blessings he has bestowed on her she is truly thankful.

In presenting the LaSertoma Youth Service Awards Jeannie Carl said that this year they had selected both a student and an adult. Miss Sue Milburn was chosen not only for her outstanding achievements but also for her extra service to her school, church and community.

Miss Milburn has been active at Circleville High School as class officer, band member, cheerleader, member of Student Council, Curtain Callers, junior class play, member and officer of the GAA and senior chairman of English Merit Society.

She has served as both president and vice president of the youth group at Community United Methodist Church, is president pro tempore of Columbus South District Youth Council, has been a delegate to Buckeye Girls' State, the Ohio 4-H Club Congress, a member of the County 4-H advisory committee, a junior leader, has won the County 4-H Safety Speaking Contest and is a member of the Explorer Scout Troop among many other achievements.

Paul Dunkle is in his 10th year of teaching elementary music in Circleville City Schools. Through his efforts the annual Elementary Spring Concert for children in grades 5-7 became a reality.

About five years ago Mr. Dunkle organized the now well known Boys Choir. Well over 90 boys have sung under Paul's leadership. He is active in St. Philip's Episcopal Church where he sings in the choir. Once a month he sings in the early service at Trinity Lutheran Church.

Grange work is very close to Mr. Dunkle's heart. He is a member of Saltcreek Valley Grange and his particular interest is the Grange Youth Program. "He has good rapport with the young people and they enjoy his leadership" said the Rev. David Allardice in a recommendation letter.

Through Grange he was instrumental in organizing a Youth Conference in 1967. This conference is the only one in the state. Here he meets with other youth advisers to discuss all aspects of grange youth activities. He has conducted grange workshops and been pianist for ritual services.

The latest endeavor of Mr. Dunkle has been working with the local DeMolay where he is assisting with many projects.

For the past seven years Mr. Dunkle has faithfully served the Kenmount Boys Camp in Kent, Conn. He has worked at the summer camp with boys from the ages of 5-8.

Serving on the Service to Mankind committee were Bill Crouch, the Rev. Roy Osborn and Charles T. Carle Jr. Members of the Youth Service Award committee were Jeannie Carle, Diana Jones, Jane Reichart and Marilyn Scranton.

The Circleville Fire Department spent 50 minutes extinguishing a fire in Sawyer's Garage, 429 E. Watt St., at 7:35 p.m. Wednesday. The garage owner, James S. Sawyer, had drained the gasoline from an auto on which he was working and proceeded to vacuum the interior of the vehicle.

A spark from the vacuum cleaner ignited the gasoline on the floor surrounding the car in flames. Sawyer immediately drove the car from the impending hazard saving it from all but $50 damages.

Firemen estimated damages to the garage at $500 and $75 on the contents. No injuries were reported.

Happiness Ageless

Mandatory retirement ages face millions of workers in industry and the world of commerce. But in arts, medicine and other professions, many practitioners refuse to retire completely. What is more, many of them do some of their most important work after they have passed their 70th or 80th birthdays.

The correlation between work and happiness is strong. The individual who enjoys what he is doing generally not only is happier but healthier. He is stimulated by his work and each day presents welcome new challenges for him.

Can that be said for the rank and file worker in a factory or office? Perhaps it is the personality of the individual as much as the work he does which determines the work addict. The play director who at 86 has a new Broadway hit, the artist who worked into his 90s turning out masterpieces acclaimed throughout the world or the conductor well into his 70s who took his orchestra on a world tour—these people have to be exceptional.

How much happier we all might be if: our daily routine was not geared to a retirement date so many birthdays hence, and we really enjoyed our work.

Say It Again, Sam

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — The speaker most in demand today is not Speaker Carl Albert of the House of Representatives. Number one pin-up boy of the lecture circuit is 75-year-old Sen. Sam Ervin.

Sam's agent, Alan S. Walker of the Program Corporation of America, says that if the chairman of the Senate Watergate committee could spare the time, he could make half a million bucks a year on the platforms of the land.

Thar's gold in them Biblical and Constitutional hills.

James A. Farley, who changed the history of the nation by propelling Franklin Delano Roosevelt into the Presidency, is still spry and straight as an Indian. Jim is 85, and counting. He is in training at the New York Athletic Club these days, getting ready to attend the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick Dinner on March 15.

He recently told an interviewer that he — one of the last classic Democrats — hopes the House will not impeach the titular head of the Republican Party. Or, if it does, the Senate will not cast Mr. Nixon into exterior darkness.

"It would split the nation at the worst possible time," Jim said.

During President Nixon's trip to China my Chinese keeper took me one day to see a boxing match at a huge muscle school outside of Peking. The two fighters entered wearing what resembled ballet outfits, including slippers that would have elicited a jealous scream from Nijinsky. For about 15 minutes, they circled each other, striking only gestures, did a lot of squatting, and zoomed into an occasional entree.

Mr. Hsu, my keeper, asked, "Isn't it exciting?"

I said something churlish, like, "Neither of these burns has laid a glove on the other guy."

Mr. Hsu was startled, and hurt. "Would you have them strike each other?" he asked, eyes suggesting imminent tears. "Would you wish to see one draw blood, and knock the other to the ground? Sport's function is the spreading of friendships. Neither of these boxers would dream of doing anything mean or hateful, like hurting the other. They are boxing for friendship's sake."

I said we had a situation very much like that in the heavyweight division in my country, which caused Mr. Hsu to give off a little cry of delight and say, "Good!"

Didn't know how accurate I was until watching the recent Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier fight, and reading that Muhammad now won't fight a poor but honest laborer named Jerry Quarry, and heavyweight champion George Foreman probably won't be able to fight Ken Norton because Mrs. Foreman might grab too much of the purse.

Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — With a surge of more than 30 per cent in wholesale prices working its way through consumer markets, Americans are taking or contemplating a variety of defensive actions.

The increase, recorded in December, will pressure its way into the retail pricing of every conceivable item in the next few months.

Food prices will be especially hard hit, because farm prices again are on the rise, and the increases are pretty much across the board rather than for a few specific items.

One way Americans seem to be meeting this situation is by purchasing less-expensive products. That at least is one conclusion that can be read from the fact that food prices rose 22 per cent in December but food store dollar volume jumped only 13.4 per cent.

Buying down is evident in automobile sales, and not solely because of the energy shortfall. Small cars were picking up a steadily larger share of the market even before the full extent of the oil predicament was clear.

Stocking up — you might call it hoarding — always becomes the strategy of some individuals when shortages or higher prices are forecast. Businessmen are inclined to do the same.

There is little hard evidence as yet that any substantial portion of householders are buying canned goods and other nonperishables in expectation of higher prices, but there is little to stop them from doing so.

The problem is that, if used by millions of householders on a broad scale, this tactic becomes counterproductive, forcing up prices.

Some people react to raging inflation by doing without anything but the essentials. Cutting their spending to the bone, they pay off their installment loans and build up their savings accounts.

When people are worried about the declining value of paper money they tend to seek something more solid, and that always includes gold, and Salaries will range from $30,000 to $250,000.

There's a particular demand, Korn says, for "nuclear power plant designers, fossil fuel engineers and designers of coal-fired boilers."

sometimes silver.

The Powell Monetary Analyst, an investment adviser, cites these figures in explanation of the phenomenon:

In 1970 the Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 4.8 per cent but the price of gold at London rose 6.5 per cent. In 1971, stocks rose 6.5 but gold 16.5. In 1972 the figures were 14.6 and 48.9, and in 1973 stocks fell 16.6 per cent while gold rose 83.6 per cent.

High Court Broadens Wiretapping

WASHINGTON (AP) — A divided Supreme Court Wednesday held that evidence gathered through a court-ordered wiretap can be used against persons not specifically under surveillance.

The 6 to 3 decision said that the Federal Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1970 does not require law enforcement agencies to investigate every possible person a wiretap might incriminate before asking for a warrant.

The wiretap issue arose from a tap placed on the telephone of Irving Kahn in search of evidence of illegal gambling.

After the wiretap was installed, the government sought to use evidence gathered against Kahn's wife, Minnie.

The U.S. Circuit Court at Chicago suppressed the evidence against Mrs. Kahn, saying that the government should have investigated Mrs. Kahn to determine if she might be involved in illegal activities before asking for a warrant naming only her husband.

Writing for the majority, Justice Potter Stewart said it was sufficient that the warrant specified a search for evidence of illegal gambling and that it included a request to gather evidence on "others as yet unknown."

Pickaway County War Board announced that farm policy standards for deferments would be greatly increased to meet the shrinking inventory of men available for the draft.

The War Board stated that farm units were determined on a basis of importance of certain farm crops and farm animals to the war effort. The Board declared that five acres of corn comprised a unit, 20 acres of wheat, 16.5 acres of soybeans, 10 acres of hay, one milk cow, 33 head of sheep and 10 head of other cattle. Other farm crops and animals had different values so far as units of production were concerned.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

What foods should be avoided by a person who has a gouty tendency? Can gout ever be completely eliminated?

Mr. T. L., Ohio

Dear Mr. L.:

More and more readers write to me about gout. I am impressed by the number of people who do not understand that when once a person has a tendency toward gout this condition almost always persists permanently.

This means, therefore, that a "gouty" person must always be on the alert to avoid foods that encourage the condition.

It is wise to remember that while gout is not curable, it is controllable. Excellent drugs are now available to reduce the uric content of the blood. It is excessive uric acid that is responsible for many of the symptoms associated with gout.

Foods that should be avoided are anchovies, kidney, liver, fish roe, sweetbreads and meat extract. Fried potatoes, mushrooms, asparagus and lentils are also thought to be high in purines, which are forerunners to uric acid.

It is surprising how reasonable a gout diet really is. Anyone who has ever suffered an attack of acute gout is well aware that the few limitations in food are a small sacrifice to make for the prevention of these painful attacks.

Gout is being incriminated more and more as being responsible for pains and aches in the muscles and the joints previously thought to be arthritic in origin. Many painful attacks of bursitis have proved to be caused by unsuspected gout.

A simple blood test can quickly determine excessive amounts of uric acid. With diet and drugs, proper balance of uric acid can be established.

Our newborn baby cries whenever she hears a loud noise.

Does this have any special meaning or signify that her hearing will be affected?

Mrs. L. S., Del.

Dear Mrs. S.:

It is not unusual for newborn children to be startled and disturbed by loud noises.

In fact, such a reaction is referred to as the "startle reflex." This is perfectly normal and has no significance in terms of future hearing.

Some children may react more readily than others, of course, but the "startle reflex" is not an abnormal one.

Dayan Won't Join Israeli Cabinet

JERUSALEM (AP) — Premier Golda Meir's chances of forming a new Israeli government were clouded today by Defense Minister Moshe Dayan's announcement that he would not join the new cabinet under present circumstances.

Mrs. Meir was reported near agreement with her Labor Alignment's traditional coalition partner, the National Religious Party. Then the one-eyed hero of the 1956 and 1967 wars against the Arabs announced he was holding out, presumably because of the widespread criticism of his failure to prepare the armed forces for the Arab attack in October.

"Dayan is trying to pull a Nasser," said one prominent political associate, referring to the late Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's resignation after Egypt's defeat in the 1967 war. Nasser's play brought hysterical mobs into the Cairo streets, shouting for his return to office, and he complied. But Dayan's plight has brought out only one crowd, of 5,000 last weekend in Jerusalem, and it demanded his ouster.

Today was the deadline for Mrs. Meir to form a new government or let someone else try. She could ask President Ephraim Katzir for a three-week extension, but she said Tuesday she did not intend to ask for more time.

Dayan's support appeared necessary to give Mrs. Meir a majority in the Knesset, the Israeli parliament. Her Labor forces won 51 of the 120 seats in the Dec. 31 elections. The National Religious party's 10 seats would give the 75-year-old premier a two-vote majority, and she can count on the support of several smaller groups on crucial issues involved in the peace negotiations with the Arabs.

But Dayan and his supporters hold seven of the Labor seats, and he did not

Assistance Control Investigation Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A full-scale inquiry into operations of the assistance control unit at the Ohio Welfare Department's Cuyahoga County office has been announced by Director Charles W. Bates.

Bates said Wednesday he ordered the investigation after receiving a confidential report on the agency's operations. He refused to discuss the nature of the report, but said one employee had been suspended as a result.

The director said workers from the department's central office here would run the assistance control division in Cleveland while the investigation is going on.

make clear whether the government would have this support without him in the cabinet.

Some associates of Dayan indicated he was trying to force Mrs. Meir to form a coalition with the Likud bloc, the rightwing opposition that profited from dissatisfaction with the government's handling of the October war and won 37 seats in the election. Mrs. Meir is opposed to bringing the Likud into the government because of its opposition to territorial concessions to the Arabs.

Dayan's successes in the 1956 and 1967 wars made him the most popular man in Israel and one of the best-known Israelis abroad. But his popularity has dropped steadily since the Arab attack in October took Israel by surprise and the Israelis suffered heavy casualties at the start of the fighting.

Say Gilligan 'Using' State Employees

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, Wednesday charged Gov. John J. Gilligan with using state employees as advance men on political trips throughout Ohio.

Maloney, at a news conference, said 10 of the 17 persons being used by Gilligan for political work are civil service employees.

He said the 17, plus Rupert F. Ruppert, advance coordinator in the governor's office, have been paid $216,897 to travel the state making arrangements for gubernatorial political trips.

Maloney submitted a copy of memorandum reportedly from Ruppert which advised advance men on how to obtain state cars and put cover plates—kept in the trunk—on them for use in making plans for Gilligan's trips.

Maloney said the information came to his attention from a person identifying himself only as "a disgusted Democratic employee who cannot stand much more of this corruption."

The anonymous memo included a check sheet for advance men including instructions on what they should do to help Gilligan's image.

The tipster said in the memorandum that Gilligan had been using state employees for political purposes since last Aug. 9.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

What foods should be avoided by a person who has a gouty tendency? Can gout ever be completely eliminated?

Mr. T. L. Ohio

Dear Mr. I.:

More and more readers write to me about gout. I am impressed by the number of people who do not understand that when once a person has a tendency toward gout this condition almost always persists permanently.

This means, therefore, that a "gouty" person must always be on the alert to avoid foods that encourage the condition.

It is wise to remember that while gout is not curable, it is controllable. Excellent drugs are now available to reduce the uric content of the blood. It is excessive uric acid that is responsible for many of the symptoms associated with gout.

Foods that should be avoided are anchovies, kidney, liver, fish roe, sweetbreads and meat extract. Fried potatoes, mushrooms, asparagus and lentils are also thought to be high in purines, which are forerunners to uric acid.

It is surprising how reasonable a gout diet really is. Anyone who has ever suffered an attack of acute gout is well aware that the few limitations in food are a small sacrifice to make for the prevention of these painful attacks.

Gout is being incriminated more and more as being responsible for pains and aches in the muscles and the joints previously thought to be arthritic in origin. Many painful attacks of bursitis have proved to be caused by unsuspected gout.

A simple blood test can quickly determine excessive amounts of uric acid. With diet and drugs, proper balance of uric acid can be established.

Our newborn baby cries whenever she hears a loud noise.

Does this have any special meaning or signify that her hearing will be affected?

Mrs. L. S., Del.

Dear Mrs. S.:

It is not unusual for newborn children to be startled and disturbed by loud noises.

In fact, such a reaction is referred to as the "startle reflex." This is perfectly normal and has no significance in terms of future hearing.

Some children may react more readily than others, of course, but the "startle reflex" is not an abnormal one.

Dayan Won't Join Israeli Cabinet

JERUSALEM (AP) — Premier Golda Meir's chances of forming a new Israeli government were clouded today by Defense Minister Moshe Dayan's announcement that he would not join the new cabinet under present circumstances.

Mrs. Meir was reported near agreement with her Labor Alignment's traditional coalition partner, the National Religious Party. Then the one-eyed hero of the 1956 and 1967 wars against the Arabs announced he was holding out, presumably because of the widespread criticism of his failure to prepare the armed forces for the Arab attack in October.

"Dayan is trying to pull a Nasser," said one prominent political associate, referring to the late Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's resignation after Egypt's defeat in the 1967 war. Nasser's ploy brought hysterical mobs into the Cairo streets, shouting for his return to office, and he complied. But Dayan's plight has brought out only one crowd, of 5,000 last weekend in Jerusalem, and it demanded his ouster.

Today was the deadline for Mrs. Meir to form a new government or let someone else try. She could ask President Ephraim Katzir for a three-week extension, but she said Tuesday she did not intend to ask for more time.

Dayan's support appeared necessary to give Mrs. Meir a majority in the Knesset, the Israeli parliament. Her Labor forces won 51 of the 120 seats in the Dec. 31 elections. The National Religious party's 10 seats would give the 75-year-old premier a two-vote majority, and she can count on the support of several smaller groups on crucial issues involved in the peace negotiations with the Arabs.

But Dayan and his supporters hold seven of the Labor seats, and he did not make clear whether the government would have this support without him in the cabinet.

Some associates of Dayan indicated he was trying to force Mrs. Meir to form a coalition with the Likud bloc, the rightwing opposition that profited from dissatisfaction with the government's handling of the October war and won 37 seats in the election. Mrs. Meir is opposed to bringing the Likud into the government because of its opposition to territorial concessions to the Arabs.

Dayan's successes in the 1956 and 1967 wars made him the most popular man in Israel and one of the best-known Israelis abroad. But his popularity has dropped steadily since the Arab attack in October took Israel by surprise and the Israelis suffered heavy casualties at the start of the fighting.

Say Gilligan 'Using' State Employees

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, Wednesday charged Gov. John J. Gilligan with using state employees as advance men on political trips throughout Ohio.

Maloney, at a news conference, said 10 of the 17 persons being used by Gilligan for political work are civil service employees.

He said the 17, plus Rupert F. Ruppert, advance coordinator in the governor's office, have been paid $216,897 to travel the state making arrangements for gubernatorial political trips.

Maloney submitted a copy of memorandum reportedly from Ruppert which advised advance men on how to obtain state cars and put cover plates—kept in the trunk—on them for use in making plans for Gilligan's trips.

Maloney said the information came to his attention from a person identifying himself only as "a disgusted Democratic employee who cannot stand much more of this corruption."

The anonymous memo included a check sheet for advance men including instructions on what they should do to help Gilligan's image.

The tipster said in the memorandum that Gilligan had been using state employees for political purposes since last Aug. 9.

4 In An Apartment

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old guy who came to New York with a buddy. We teamed up with another guy, and the three of us share a two-bedroom apartment. It's a great location for all of us, and we split the rent.

My buddy (the one I came to New York with) invited his girl friend from back home to come to New York and stay at his pad. She's still here and plans to stay indefinitely. (She and my buddy share one bedroom, and the other guy and I share one.)

I recently met Joan, who's the nicest gal I've ever known. She asked me where I lived, and I told her I lived with two other guys. Then I mentioned this girl who's staying with my buddy. Joan blew her stack and said she didn't like the idea of a girl living in the same apartment with me even though I have nothing to do with her. I'm serious about Joan. She's a very classy gal, but she insists that either that girl should move, or I should. What do you think?

MR. CLEAN

DEAR MR. CLEAN: If anybody should move, it should be your buddy who invited his girl friend to bunk with him. That's not the deal you made originally. Joans objections are valid, so if the shacker-uppers won't budge, you'd be wise to move. It's easier to find another pad than another classy gal.

DEAR ABBY: Please reassure the wife who lamented that she had been smashing in bed, but short elsewhere during 27 years of marriage:

1. A lady's enthusiasm has everything to do with a man's virility (rhymes with ability);
2. Love and sex are not synonymous, but they can be mighty close kin;

DEAR HUSBAND: And I'll bet you're right!

DEAR ABBY: My own tendency to be late was cured when someone said that tardiness is the subtlest form of self-love and conceit-counting your time and convenience more important than other's.

Perhaps that is why the tardiness of my inlaws rankles me so. They are consistently late, a half hour to an hour and a half, even for dinner when others are involved.

Don't suggest that I give them an earlier arrival time. One family member did this, and when it was discovered, retaliation set in. How would you handle this? (Short of ex-

Auto Prices May Go Up

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. has hinted it may want to increase prices on its 1974 model cars and trucks despite an agreement with the Cost of Living Council to hold the line.

GM took notice on Tuesday of its commitment not to raise prices until the introduction of 1975 models, then added in a statement: "In fact, we may have to seek relief before that time."

Chrysler Corp. and Ford Motor Co. spokesmen said last week a price hike might also be in their future. American Motors Corp. has not commented.

Like Ford and AMC, GM agreed with the council in December to keep prices at the current level unless "unforeseen major economic events" occur. Chrysler did not make a commitment and conceded last week it was considering a price hike.

Ford suggested last week that "the terrible cost squeeze" may be grounds for seeking another increase.

GM said increased costs and changes in 1975 models due to federal regulations covering emissions and safety standards might force a boost in prices.

OESEA Power Struggle Seen After Firing Of Organizers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Chapter presidents of the Ohio Civil Service Employees Association (OCSEA) were asked Tuesday to repudiate the union's executive board for its firing of 13 union organizers.

Labor leader Herschel M. Sigall, one of those fired, said he will ask the chapter presidents to meet this weekend and express the views of their members.

Sigall said he's confident the rank and file union members do not support the board.

Sigall and 10 other fired organizers held a news conference Tuesday after an allmorning strategy session. At the conference, they said the board fired them because it is afraid of an effective labor organization.

"The executive board, I believe, feared growth and maturity as a threat to their 'business as usual,'" Sigall said. "The executive board did not fear me or this staff. They feared a democratically awakened rank and file."

"It was not the workers who took yesterday's action," Sigall said. "It was the supervisors who are out of touch with their members."

Sigall said the "operation ... represents the first time healthy tissue was ever excised in order to permit the unimpaired growth of a malignancy."

Sigall said he didn't know what strategy could be followed to overturn the board's action. But one of the fired workers noted a two-thirds vote of chapter presidents can oust the executive board.

Sigall said he received several calls from shocked chapter presidents Monday night. He said he believes the union members support the move to make the OCSEA a more active labor organization.

Official Exorcist Has Office Hours

PARIS (AP) — The exorcist has office hours.

And a beige waiting room, and a carpeted consultation nook, and a pretty good-working relationship with the devil.

Encased in glass and steel and two floors down from the headquarters of the archbishop of Paris, Francois Cardinal Marty is a once-a-week world of talk of spells and demons.

The "possessed" begin lining up at 8 a.m. on Wednesdays waiting for the Rev. Henri Gesland, 66, to arrive for work at the antiseptically modern building of the Paris Roman Catholic archdiocese.

A small, gnomish man with a white rim of beard along his chin, Father Gesland slips behind his chair and begins a day of listening. He is the Church's official exorcist for the Paris region, but as far as he is concerned the devil is a rare visitor.

"Since my appointment in 1968, I've had more than 3,000 consultations," the priest said. "There have been four cases of what I believe to be demonic possession."

In a normal day of devilchasing, the Father Gesland sees up to 25 visitors who wait patiently for their turn.

Recently, with French newspapers reporting on America's interest in the film "The Exorcist", Father Gesland's waiting lines have grown.

"It's pretty much the same thing," Father Gesland explains. "I let them talk. And I listen. A large proportion of my visitors think someone has placed a spell on them...."

"I give practical advice in most of the cases. 'are you eating enough?' I might ask. And then I might suggest that they see a general practitioner or even a psychiatrist."

Father Gesland has no special training for the exorcist's job, but after returning from 30 years in Ceylon as a missionary, he assisted another priest in helping a woman who thought she was afflicted by devils. When the exorcist in charge resigned, the diocese called on Father Gesland.

"The choice," according to the Rev. Roger Meillet of the diocesan headquarters, "was dictated by Father Gesland's personality, more than any other factor. He is an understanding man, a patient man, who can listen and calm people."

But for all the "zozos" — the priest's expression for jokers — that he sees, there have been the four cases where he did recite the Litany of the Saints and the 53rd Psalm, where he splashed holy water over the possessed and ordered the evil spirits to flee and not return again.

Strangely, Father Gesland's most convincing struggle with demons involved two 13-year-old girls — about a year older than the pre-teen-ager played by Linda Blair in the film, which has not yet been shown in France.

"This child was at a difficult age, puberty, and you draw what conclusions you want from that," the priest said, "but there were reports from many people that there were many strange things about her. First, she brusquely changed from a normal child to one who insulted everyone — teachers, relatives, friends — with incredibly filthy language. When she walked in front of lamps, the lights would go out. When she sat in rooms, things fell from the mantle or a table.

"We decided exorcism was in order. I did three sessions that lasted two to three hours each. I used a rather long, official Latin prayer that asks the evil spirit to name itself and say why it is in the person. I ordered it to give a sign it will leave and won't come back.

"As I said the prayers the child who had been rolling on the floor of the church appeared to calm down. But there was a terrible battle after a while. When I showed my pectoral cross, she hurled against the floor and kicked me. But finally the devil did depart.

"Later when her parents were leaving the church, the child opened her mouth and a miraculous medal fell out. We had been with her every second. She could not have placed it in her mouth. Now, a year later, she is much better."

The other 13-year-old spoke Italian and German when she was possessed even though she did not know either language, Father Gesland said. He said that she, too, was freed of demons through exorcism.

"These are very special, unusual cases," he said, "Most people who come to see me, I try to talk to, give them 15 minutes of my time and see if I can't calm them down. It's quite sad when you have a person who insists on a solemn exorcism and you tell them that's not possible.

"I know that they're not possessed by any devils, but they are sure that's the reason life isn't going their way. I tell them take a walk, improve your diet, get along better with your family. The devil is not hiding behind every rose bush, you know."

Gas Siphoned From Ambulance

OXNARD, Calif. (AP) — Silvia M. Robledo, 19, was arrested and booked for investigation of petty theft after an ambulance driver found her kneeling in darkness near his ambulance.

Driver Dan McCoy, 23, said he found a woman, a five-gallon can and a length of hose near the ambulance when he arrived at the vehicle Tuesday to make a call. He said he chased the woman, caught her, and then used his ambulance radio to call police. Then he used the radio to call another ambulance to make the emergency call.

McCoy said the can was full, his gas tank empty.

CIA Obstacle To Relations With Castro

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Central Intelligence Agency is the principal obstacle to a settlement of differences between the U.S. and Cuba, millionaire industrialist Cyrus Eaton said Tuesday.

Eaton also accused C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, a close friend of President Nixon, of using his influence to convince the president "not to move toward improved relations with the government of Fidel Castro."

Eaton was quoted in the Miami News as saying that Rebozo, who has close ties with the Cuban refugee community in Miami, "in the Cuban matter, has almost been compelling."

In the telephone interview from his Cleveland home, Eaton said that because of his role in the Bay of Pigs invasion and the long-standing anti-Cuba activities, the CIA has a vested interest in maintaining America's economic and diplomatic freeze against Cuba. He accused the CIA or its agents of helping organize anti-Cuba demonstration by 5,000 Cuban refugees in Miami Sunday.

Official Exorcist Has Office Hours

PARIS (AP) — The exorcist has office hours. And a beige waiting room, and a carpeted consultation nook, and a pretty good-working relationship with the devil.

Encased in glass and steel and two floors down from the headquarters of the archbishop of Paris, Francois Cardinal Marty is a once-a-week world of talk of spells and demons.

The "possessed" begin lining up at 8 a.m. on Wednesdays waiting for the Rev. Henri Gesland, 66, to arrive for work at the antiseptically modern building of the Paris Roman Catholic archdiocese.

A small, gnomish man with a white rim of beard along his chin, Father Gesland slips behind his chair and begins a day of listening. He is the Church's official exorcist for the Paris region, but as far as he is concerned the devil is a rare visitor.

"Since my appointment in 1968, I've had more than 3,000 consultations," the priest said. "There have been four cases of what I believe to be demonic possession."

In a normal day of devilchasing, the Father Gesland sees up to 25 visitors who wait patiently for their turn.

Recently, with French newspapers reporting on America's interest in the film "The Exorcist", Father Gesland's waiting lines have grown.

"It's pretty much the same thing," Father Gesland explains. "I let them talk. And I listen. A large proportion of my visitors think someone has placed a spell on them...."

"I give practical advice in most of the cases. 'Are you eating enough?' I might ask. And then I might suggest that they see a general practitioner or even a psychiatrist."

Father Gesland has no special training for the exorcist's job, but after returning from 30 years in Ceylon as a missionary, he assisted another priest in helping a woman who thought she was afflicted by devils. When the exorcist in charge resigned, the diocese called on Father Gesland.

"The choice," according to the Rev. Roger Meillet of the diocesan headquarters, "was dictated by Father Gesland's personality, more than any other factor. He is an understanding man, a patient man, who can listen and calm people."

But for all the "zozos" — the priest's expression for jokers — that he sees, there have been the four cases where he did recite the Litany of the Saints and the 53rd Psalm, where he splashed holy water over the possessed and ordered the evil spirits to flee and not return again.

Strangely, Father Gesland's most convincing struggle with demons involved two 13-year-old girls — about a year older than the pre-teen-ager played by Linda Blair in the film, which has not yet been shown in France.

"This child was at a difficult age, puberty, and you draw what con-

Gas Siphoned From Ambulance

OXNARD, Calif. (AP) — Silvia M. Robledo, 19, was arrested and booked for investigation of petty theft after an ambulance driver found her kneeling in darkness near his ambulance.

Driver Dan McCoy, 23, said he found a woman, a five-gallon can and a length of hose near the ambulance when he arrived at the vehicle Tuesday to make a call. He said he chased the woman, caught her, and then used his ambulance radio to call police. Then he used the radio to call another ambulance to make the emergency call.

McCoy said the can was full, his gas tank empty.

Daylight Time Has Little Effect On Road Deaths

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council says the switch to Daylight Saving Time has had little or no effect on the number of early-morning traffic fatalities among school age children.

A survey in 42 states and the District of Columbia showed no appreciable difference in the number of early morning fatalities in January 1974 compared with January 1973, Vincent Tofany, president of the council, said Tuesday.

The council said 20 traffic fatalities were recorded in January 1974 among children aged 4 through 18 who were walking or pedaling to school between the hours of 6 a.m. and 9 a.m.

The council said 19 fatalities were recorded for the same period in January 1973.

New Faces Set In State Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The new legislature Ohioans will elect this year to take office in January will have at least 13 new faces, all in the House.

That many members of the lower chamber have decided not to seek reelection for one reason or another. Ten are running for other offices and three apparently felt they had had enough.

All senators with odd-numbered districts are up for reelection and are running, all 17 of them. Also running this year is Sen. Gene Slagle, D-26 Galion, who had the last two years of his four-year term invalidated by the Senate for alleged voting irregularities in his district.

Some senators from even-numbered districts—with nothing to lose but time and money—are trying for higher offices and will remain in the Senate for another two years if they don't make it. Sen. Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, is seeking the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State. Minority Leader Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, will try to nab his party's nomination for lieutenant governor for the second straight time.

Sen. Stanley J. Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati, filed petitions in the race for the GOP nomination for Attorney General, while Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, is in a crowded field seeking the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 23rd District.

Among House members with ambitions is Rep. Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield, who is stepping down in order to run for the Republican nomination for governor. He is pitted against a formidable vote-getter, former Gov. James A. Rhodes, in the May 7 primary.

Reps. George Mastics, R-3 Cleveland; James P. Celebrezze, D-4 Cleveland, and Thomas N. Kindness, R-58 Hamilton, are trying for their parties' nominations for Congress in their districts.

Rep. Richard F. Celeste, D-5 Cleveland, is in the Democratic race for lieutenant governor. Reps. Donald Pease, D-54 Oberlin; James Mueller, D-75 Chesterland, and John T. McCormack, D-18 Euclid, are trying for the Ohio Senate—Pease in the 13th District now represented by Sen. Robert J. Corts of Elyria, and the others in the 31st District where the incumbent is Charles P. Bolton of Mentor.

Rep. Oakley Collins, R-92 Ironton, is trying to unseat Sen. Harry Armstrong, R-17 Logan, while Reps. John Sweeney, D-14 Cleveland; John Bechtold, R-26 Cincinnati, and Robert E. Levitt, R-70 Canton, have said they would not run again.

Among the 86 races in the House, 24 incumbents have primary opposition, 19 of them Republicans. Five House members apparently were re-elected by default when the Feb. 6 filing deadline passed without anyone from either party challenging them.

Barring successful write-ins or other unforeseen developments, the lawmakers who can start planning on how to spend the $3,500 raise—from $14,000 to $17,500—legislators will get next New Year's are Reps. Frederick Young, R-38 Dayton; Barney Quilter, D-47 Toledo; Thomas J. Carney, D-71 Youngstown; William L. Mallory, D-23 Cincinnati, and Thomas P. Gilmartin, D-51 Youngstown.

House Panel Holds Future Of Energy Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The controversy over oil prices has shifted to the House where the Rules Committee is considering the future of emergency energy legislation already threatened with a Presidential veto.

The measure, which would roll back the price of roughly one-quarter of the crude oil produced in the United States, passed the Senate Tuesday by a margin large enough to override the promised veto. Senate Interior Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said the rollback could reduce gasoline prices by 5 cents a gallon and cut soaring propane prices in half.

Since the rollback was not contained in the bill originally passed by the House, the Rules Committee now must decide whether to waive the parliamentary points of order certain to be raised by representatives from oil-producing states. Previous attempts to grant the bill such a waiver have failed on a 7 to 7 tie vote.

The bill, which also would grant President Nixon power to order gasoline rationing, passed the Senate Tuesday by a vote of 67 to 32 after surviving with surprising ease an administration-backed effort to return the bill to conference with the House.

After the vote, Jackson said he was confident the Senate could override the presidential veto promised by federal energy chief William E. Simon in a letter to Minority Leader Hugh Scott. However, he added he could not predict what would happen in the House.

In addition to the rollback, Simon also objected to a provision that would make available an additional $500 million in unemployment benefits to workers laid off because of fuel shortages.

The bill also would suspend clean air standards temporarily in order to permit power plants to burn high sulfur coal and would grant Detroit a one year delay in meeting auto exhaust requirements.

Oldest Furnace Being Dismantled

MASSILLON, Ohio (AP)—Republic Steel Corp. officials say the 170-foot-high blast furnace at the Massillon plant, which turned out 6.5 million tons of iron over a 39-year period, is being dismantled.

Republic's Central Alloy District manager, O.D. Musat, said today the plant has switched to electric furnaces and the blast furnace, which was "blown in" in 1926, has been idle since 1965.

Ford Says GOP Can Turn Tide

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — An impassioned Gerald Ford vowed Republicans can "turn the tide" by making a final allout effort to capture a congressional seat in a special March 5 election here.

"We're in the last minutes of the last quarter," he said Wednesday in a six-hour campaign swing for former Cincinnati Mayor Willis Gradison Jr., Republican congressional candidate for the 1st District.

Gradison's opponent, another former mayor, is Democrat Thomas Luken. The Congressional seat here has gone to Democrats only twice in the past half century. It was vacated last month by Republican William Keating who resigned to become president of The Cincinnati Enquirer.

Poor Nations May Go Under Due To Food And Fuel Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 30 poor nations with 900 million people face economic collapse unless other countries help pay for their higher food and oil bills, a private study says.

The developing nations cited in the study are in tropical Africa, Southeast Asia, and Central America and include Chile, Uruguay and possibly the Philippines, the study prepared by the Overseas Development Council says. India and Bangladesh are among them.

James P. Grant, a former State Department official, prepared the Ford, whose presence in this river city sparked a protest by more than 150 picketers at the Cincinnati Convention Center, addressed more than 400 people at a $100-a-plate dinner at a downtown hotel.

He later disregarded police advice and walked the two blocks to the Convention Center for a Hamilton County Republican rally, evading protestors and slipping in through a side door.

The Cincinnati election is the third of six special Congressional elections early this year. The first two were won by Democrats in Pennsylvania and in Ford's Michigan district.

"We have the chance to stop the stampede and tell the American people we have good policies here and study for the council, a privately financed "think tank" which studies international problems.

According to Grant, the poorest of the developing nations need an additional $3 billion annually to cover increased prices for food and fertilizer and fuel to stave off economic catastrophe.

Perhaps another $1 billion will be needed to help the poor nations develop coal-conversion projects and other means of easing the fuel shortage in the future, the study said.

The council's study coincides with estimates of the impact of the energy crisis on poor nations made by the Nixon administration.

Only last week, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said a number of developing nations are confronted with starvation unless aid is extended.

Because these nations are so poor, they are unable to get enough credit to pay for the higher food and fuel costs, the study said.

Grant said one proposal under study by the administration would call for selling American wheat to the poor nations at the July 1, 1972 price, then extending credit on easy terms to the poor countries to make up the difference.

This would be in conjunction with an agreement in which the oil exporting nations would in essence do the same thing with oil. But no such agreement is in sight, and U.S. officials said they doubted it would be proposed.

abroad," Ford told the dinner guests. On the plane to Cincinnati he told newsmen the President has indicated there is "little or no possibility of gasoline rationing."

He said America has made "Tremendous progress in handling the short-term energy crisis, we're almost over the hump."

Ford said he told the President Watergate "did have an impact" on the Michigan election, but mainly blamed the condition of Michigan's auto industry for the Republican loss.

He said there "is no question" that President Nixon realized the extent of public skepticism growing out of Watergate.

He told newsmen here the White House "could have handled it (Watergate) better. They could have given the information to the (Senate Watergate) committee or the special prosecutor more promptly."

House Panel Holds Future Of Energy Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The controversy over oil prices has shifted to the House where the Rules Committee is considering the future of emergency energy legislation already threatened with a Presidential veto.

The measure, which would roll back the price of roughly one-quarter of the crude oil produced in the United States, passed the Senate Tuesday by a margin large enough to override the promised veto. Senate Interior Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said the rollback could reduce gasoline prices by 5 cents a gallon and cut soaring propane prices in half.

Since the rollback was not contained in the bill originally passed by the House, the Rules Committee now must decide whether to waive the parliamentary points of order certain to be raised by representatives from oil-producing states. Previous attempts to grant the bill such a waiver have failed on a 7 to 7 tie vote.

The bill, which also would grant President Nixon power to order gasoline rationing, passed the Senate Tuesday by a vote of 67 to 32 after surviving with surprising ease an administration-backed effort to return the bill to conference with the House.

After the vote, Jackson said he was confident the Senate could override the presidential veto promised by federal energy chief William E. Simon in a letter to Minority Leader Hugh Scott. However, he added he could not predict what would happen in the House.

In addition to the rollback, Simon also objected to a provision that would make available an additional $500 million in unemployment benefits to workers laid off because of fuel shortages.

The bill also would suspend clean air standards temporarily in order to permit power plants to burn high sulfur coal and would grant Detroit a one year delay in meeting auto exhaust requirements.

Oldest Furnace Being Dismantled

MASSILLON, Ohio (AP)—Republic Steel Corp. officials say the 170-foot-high blast furnace at the Massillon plant, which turned out 6.5 million tons of iron over a 39-year period, is being dismantled.

Republic's Central Alloy District manager, O.D. Musat, said today the plant has switched to electric furnaces and the blast furnace, which was "blown in" in 1926, has been idle since 1965.

Ford Says GOP Can Turn Tide

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — An impassioned Gerald Ford vowed Republicans can "turn the tide" by making a final all-out effort to capture a congressional seat in a special March 5 election here.

"We're in the last minutes of the last quarter," he said Wednesday in a six-hour campaign swing for former Cincinnati Mayor Willis Gradison Jr., Republican congressional candidate for the 1st District.

Gradison's opponent, another former mayor, is Democrat Thomas Luken. The Congressional seat here has gone to Democrats only twice in the past half century. It was vacated last month by Republican William Keating who resigned to become president of The Cincinnati Enquirer.

Poor Nations May Go Under Due To Food And Fuel Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 30 poor nations with 900 million people face economic collapse unless other countries help pay for their higher food and oil bills, a private study says.

The developing nations cited in the study are in tropical Africa, Southeast Asia, and Central America and include Chile, Uruguay and possibly the Philippines, the study prepared by the Overseas Development Council says. India and Bangladesh are among them.

James P. Grant, a former State Department official, prepared the Ford, whose presence in this river city sparked a protest by more than 150 picketers at the Cincinnati Convention Center, addressed more than 400 people at a $100-a-plate dinner at a downtown hotel.

He later disregarded police advice and walked the two blocks to the Convention Center for a Hamilton County Republican rally, evading protestors and slipping in through a side door.

The Cincinnati election is the third of six special Congressional elections early this year. The first two were won by Democrats in Pennsylvania and in Ford's Michigan district.

study for the council, a privately financed "think tank" which studies international problems.

According to Grant, the poorest of the developing nations need an additional $3 billion annually to cover increased prices for food and fertilizer and fuel to stave off economic catastrophe.

Perhaps another $1 billion will be needed to help the poor nations develop coal-conversion projects and other means of easing the fuel shortage in the future, the study said.

The council's study coincides with estimates of the impact of the energy crisis on poor nations made by the Nixon administration.

Only last week, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said a number of developing nations are confronted with starvation unless aid is extended.

Because these nations are so poor, they are unable to get enough credit to pay for the higher food and fuel costs, the study said.

Grant said one proposal under study by the administration would call for selling American wheat to the poor nations at the July 1, 1972 price, then extending credit on easy terms to the poor countries to make up the difference.

This would be in conjunction with an agreement in which the oil exporting nations would in essence do the same thing with oil. But no such agreement is in sight, and U.S. officials said they doubted it would be proposed.

Man Converts V8 To Economical V4

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — John Gerrish's "soupeddown" big car doesn't run too well uphill and leaves something to be desired in city traffic.

But he thinks it's the wave of the future in these days of short gasoline supplies.

His Chevrolet is being operated on only four of its eight cylinders in an amateur fuel economy test.

Gerrish and three colleagues at Michigan State University's agricultural engineering department figure if several million Americans turn their overpowered V8 engines into V4s, the savings would be considerable.

To test their theory, the educators converted Gerrish's 1968 Chevy Bel Air by pulling out half the engine's push rods, an adjustment a garage mechanic can perform in about 20 minutes.

With the push rods gone, the intake valves were left closed so no gasoline can get into the four "dead" cylinders. The result is a V4.

Gerrish reports that fuel economy is good but performance is poor going up hills and through city streets. On open roads, though, it's worth its weight in gas, he says.

Gerrish has been test-driving his V4 for several weeks. He says that, depending on his speed, his car gets up to 28.3 m.p.g. — a 21 per cent saving.

"This isn't for the drag racer, for the hill climber or for the city driver. It's like owning a 3,600-pound Volkswagen," the 35-year-old father of four said.

He envisions eventually the installation of a cutout switch that would permit a driver to use all cylinders of his engine on hills and city streets and half the cylinders for flat freeway driving.

A spokesman for General Motors had a warning about the "souped-down" plan, however.

He said damage will undoubtedly occur if engines operate on only half their cylinders because "the car is designed to operate on eight cylinders. If it operates on four, then you're putting too much stress on the engine."

Greek Military Regime Sees Plot By Communist Party

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The Greek military regime says it has uncovered a Communist plot to overthrow it and expects to arrest more of the plotters.

A government spokesman said Tuesday that 35 members of the outlawed Greek Communist party and its youth branch had been arrested so far.

The government also accused exiled opposition leader Andreas Papandreu of collaborating in the plot.

The announcement of the alleged plot came amid a government crackdown on opponents, including critical newspapers. A concentration camp on the Aegean island of Yiaros has been reopened, and about 120 persons are reported imprisoned there. Security police are roaming the campuses of the three universities in Athens on the lookout for dissenters.

The government claimed the Communists had spent $37,000 in the past month to foment a student uprising that was to pave the way for a Communist takeover. A spokesman said the uprising was to have started last Sunday.

Officials claimed the Communists also had a hand in the student rioting last November. But then a group of army generals stepped in and ousted

Seek Dismissal Of Battelle Probe

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Officials of Battelle Memorial Institute, the international research organization, have asked the Franklin County Court of Appeals to halt an investigation of Battelle's financial affairs.

Judge Richard Metcalf of the county's common pleas court has no authority to make the inquiry, Battelle's attorneys said in the legal action filed Wednesday.

The investigation, begun in 1969 to determine if the directors had lived up to the terms of the charitable trust which set up Battelle, is damaging to employee morale, costing too much time and money and causing concern among project sponsors, the attorneys said.

Man's Cash 'Exorcised' By Women

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — A woman and her twin daughters have "exorcised" their landlord here in a phony ritual which cost the man $3,500, Dist. Atty. Carl A. Vergari says.

Held in lieu of $7,500 bail each on an indictment charging them with grand larceny are Mary Williams, 45, and her daughters, Helen Williams and Laura Lopez, 26.

Vergari gave this account: The woman told their landlord, Jose Lopez, recently laid off from a landscaping job, that he didn't look well.

Convincing Lopez — no relative to Laura — that his failing health and lost job were the devil's doing, they advised him to undergo exorcism.

Lopez consented. He was told to draw $3,500 from his savings to demonstrate his faith in the ritual.

The trumped-up rite was performed on Jan. 29 at the women's residence and involved rubbing Lopez's head with fake holy water, the taking of oaths on a Bible and incantation.

At one point the women showed Lopez a red worm, telling him it was part of the devil exorcised from his brain.

The $3,500 was wrapped in a towel soaked with the ersatz holy water. The money then was supposedly put into a paper bag and set afire.

But the women pulled a switch and kept the money, assuring Lopez if he had faith the "burned" currency would return in the form of good health and financial success.

A week later, suspecting he might have been taken, Lopez took the story to the district attorney.

Kissinger Plans Trip To Talk With Syria, Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger returns to the Middle East again on Monday, this time to try to arrange for disengagement talks between Israel and Syria.

President Nixon announced on Tuesday the Kissinger trip which, he said, should "get the talks started." If Kissinger had a difficult task arranging the separation of Israeli and Egyptian forces on the Suez Canal, his new job appears to be even more formidable, American specialists acknowledge.

Nixon made the announcement in the White House Rose Garden after a 90-minute conference with Ismail Fahmy and Omar Sakkaf, the foreign ministers of Egypt and Saudi Arabia respectively.

Kissinger has repeatedly said he was willing to act as a gobetween in the Israeli-Syrian dispute should both sides show readiness to drop their insistence on rigid preconditions.

This condition, U.S. officials and diplomatic observers hint, has now been fulfilled. But in what way remains secret. Kissinger has met with Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz several times within the past few days, presumably receiving from the diplomat the Israeli position.

Fahmy and Sakkaf presented Nixon with a message from the heads of state of Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Algeria and these apparently convinced Nixon that he would be justified in dispatching his secretary of state to the Middle East.

The two Arab ministers described their message as good news, but declined to spell out what it was. The previous Syrian position was that they want back the territories they lost in 1967 and 1973 before any talks about disengagement and before furnishing a list of Israeli prisoners of war. Israel, on the other hand, refused to talk about disengagement without the POW list. In the Rose Garden, Nixon said the ultimate goal is a permanent settlement in the Middle East but added that disengagement along the Golan Heights is the immediate problem Kissinger now will attempt to solve.

U.S. officials and Arab diplomats made it clear that the good news did not mean that the Arabs were willing to relent immediately on their oil embargo, punishing the United States for having supplied Israel with military hardware.

Legislative Report

By MYRL SHOEMAKER,
State Representative
88th House District

In legislative action this week the House of Representative passed an emergency measure which will conform Ohio's speed law to requirements of the Federal Energy Conservation Act.

The bill will prohibit until June 30, 1975, or the end of the fuel shortage, whichever is sooner, the operation of motor vehicles on highways at speeds greater than 55 miles per hour.

The House passed measure now goes to the Senate and must become effective by March 3, as required by the federal government, or Ohio stands to lose up to $170 million in federal highway funds for 1974 alone.

The point system for violators would not apply to those going in excess of 55 m.p.h., but will apply for speeds in excess of the 70 m.p.h. limit in current law. However, tickets and subsequent fines will be in order for violators going over 55 m.p.h.

The Ohio House adopted its own strict code of ethics this week, setting up the machinery for financial disclosure and other requirements of its members as prescribed by the state's new Code of Ethics law.

Under the ethics law, passed last year by the General Assembly, the House and Senate are required to establish their own Code of Ethics Committee and adopt their codes by March 1st.

The new code requires a member to disclose whether he holds a license for any trade or profession regulated by the state; prohibits him from receiving any compensation for services rendered in any case, pleading, or application pending before any state agency except in the courts; bans the intermingling of personal and campaign funds; and bans the acceptance of any honorarium for a speech or contribution to a publication "in excess of the usual and customary value for such services".

The Governor did so after reports indicated truck traffic had returned to near normal volume and incidents of

Cincy Faces School Strike

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati's public schools could be hit Monday by a teacher "sick-in."

More than 700 of the city's 3,500 public school teachers Wednesday voted to attend Monday's 10 a.m. school board meeting and air their opposition to a proposed teacher transfer to attain a racial balance.

The teachers are asking for a complete desegregation plan, something the new school board has sidestepped.

Teachers also want the meeting time changed so they can attend. If the board refuses to change the time, they agreed to call in sick in order to attend.

Charles Lindbergh, president of the school board, said his group has no plans "to yield to that kind of pressure. It's not the way to run a school district. The teachers are supposed to be setting examples."

YMCA MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN CAPTAINS—Jerry Anderson, Doris Gillispie, Andy Halcoussis and Alex Dolhanczyk are pictured at a recent campaign training meeting. Not present are captains Carson Schaeffer and Bob Johnson. Drive Co-Chairmen, Jim Edman and John Raterman announced that this year's campaign goal is set for $8,700. The chairmen also reported a campaign team of over 50 local people. Special emphasis will be placed this year in expanding the YMCA Century Club program, Partner with Youth and a new classification, Patron of Youth. The YMCA in 1973 served 96 organized groups with an enrollment of 1,123 and a year attendance of 16,653. It was also reported that 52 Community non-member groups with enrollments of 1,863 were served by the YMCA during 1973. Hi-liting the 1973 statistics was the Informal Education enrollment of 1,104.

Kissinger Plans Trip To Talk With Syria, Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger returns to the Middle East again on Monday, this time to try to arrange for disengagement talks between Israel and Syria.

President Nixon announced on Tuesday the Kissinger trip which, he said, should "get the talks started." If Kissinger had a difficult task arranging the separation of Israeli and Egyptian forces on the Suez Canal, his new job appears to be even more formidable, American specialists acknowledge.

Nixon made the announcement in the White House Rose Garden after a 90-minute conference with Ismail Fahmy and Omar Sakkaf, the foreign ministers of Egypt and Saudi Arabia respectively.

Kissinger has repeatedly said he was willing to act as a go-between in the Israeli-Syrian dispute should both sides show readiness to drop their insistence on rigid preconditions.

This condition, U.S. officials and diplomatic observers hint, has now been fulfilled. But in what way remains secret. Kissinger has met with Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz several times within the past few days, presumably receiving from the diplomat the Israeli position.

Fahmy and Sakkaf presented Nixon with a message from the heads of state of Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Algeria and these apparently convinced Nixon that he would be justified in dispatching his secretary of state to the Middle East.

The two Arab ministers described their message as good news, but declined to spell out what it was. The previous Syrian position was that they want back the territories they lost in 1967 and 1973 before any talks about disengagement and before furnishing a list of Israeli prisoners of war. Israel, on the other hand, refused to talk about disengagement without the POW list.

In the Rose Garden, Nixon said the ultimate goal is a permanent settlement in the Middle East but added that disengagement along the Golan Heights is the immediate problem Kissinger now will attempt to solve.

U.S. officials and Arab diplomats made it clear that the good news did not mean that the Arabs were willing to relent immediately on their oil embargo, punishing the United States for having supplied Israel with military hardware.

Legislative Report

By MYRL SHOEMAKER,
State Representative
88th House District

In legislative action this week the House of Representatives passed an emergency measure which will conform Ohio's speed law to requirements of the Federal Energy Conservation Act.

The bill will prohibit until June 30, 1975, or the end of the fuel shortage, whichever is sooner, the operation of motor vehicles on highways at speeds greater than 55 miles per hour.

The House passed measure now goes to the Senate and must become effective by March 3, as required by the federal government, or Ohio stands to lose up to $170 million in federal highway funds for 1974 alone.

The point system for violators would not apply to those going in excess of 55 m.p.h., but will apply for speeds in excess of the 70 m.p.h. limit in current law. However, tickets and subsequent fines will be in order for violators going over 55 m.p.h.

The Ohio House adopted its own strict code of ethics this week, setting up the machinery for financial disclosure and other requirements of its members as prescribed by the state's new Code of Ethics law.

Under the ethics law, passed last year by the General Assembly, the House and Senate are required to establish their own Code of Ethics Committee and adopt their codes by March 1st.

The new code requires a member to disclose whether he holds a license for any trade or profession regulated by the state; prohibits him from receiving any compensation for services rendered in any case, pleading, or application pending before any state agency except in the courts; bans the intermingling of personal and campaign funds; and bans the acceptance of any honorarium for a speech or contribution to a publication "in excess of the usual and customary value for such services."

Governor Gilligan this week ordered the deactivation of National Guard units which had been on duty protecting truck drivers in Ohio. The Governor did so after reports indicated truck traffic had returned to near normal volume and incidents of violence which moved the truck shutdown were virtually ended.

A new toll-free telephone "hotline" is now in operation for Ohioans wanting information about vocational or technical education in Ohio.

Energy Pinch Hits Highway Work

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The energy crisis has forced Ohio's highway program to slow down to a crawl and the chairman of the House Highways Subcommittee of the General Assembly wants to take action.

Rep. Arthur Bowers, D-98 Steubenville, is sponsoring a bill that would take $60 million out of state general revenue funds and allocate it to the Department of Transportation.

Of the total, $50 million would go for capital improvements and $10 million for mass transit.

Bowers said that under present law money derived from the state's 7-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax is earmarked for highway purposes. That source is dwindling as a result of fuel conservation programs.

The Steubenville Democrat said, "There is no prohibition against general fund monies being appropriated for highways."

The Jefferson County legislator said no other state department or program has been so directly affected and in such great proportions by the energy crisis as the Department of Transportation.

"No other department will be so greatly hurt," said Bowers. "Inflation already has greatly increased highway construction costs in all areas—labor, steel, asphalt, concrete, right-of-way property costs, and the existing 7-cents-a-gallon state fuel tax has not increased since 1959."

Bowers also said that under the new federal revenue sharing program many other types of capital improvements were made possible, "but not one cent was directed for highways."

J. Phillip Richley, state transportation director, confirmed Bowers' evaluation when he testified on a bill lowering Ohio's speed limits to 55 miles an hour.

Richley said that, while that bill probably would cost his department to lose about 10 per cent of its revenues, gasoline rationing, if it comes, would cost the department $72 million a year.

"There would be a fantastic number of people laid off," he said. "It would virtually put us out of business. We'd have a deficit and there would be no new construction."

Richley said his department already has decided to undertake no new construction between now and June 30 "other than those funded 90 or 100 per cent by the federal government and any emergency projects needed to maintain the health and safety of Ohio motorists."

Metzenbaum Taxes Secret

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— U.S. Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum said Tuesday he would not release copies of his income tax returns in response to John Glenn's financial disclosures.

In a statement, Metzenbaum said he believed the people of Ohio were more concerned with the ability of their public officials to do a good job than with their wealth.

Glenn made Monday what he called the most complete financial disclosure ever by a candidate for public office. His records showed the former astronaut was worth about $768,000.

Metzenbaum has said his net worth is about $3.6 million.

Glenn and Metzenbaum are rivals for the Senate seat Metzenbaum holds by appointment.

Energy Pinch Hits Highway Work

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The energy crisis has forced Ohio's highway program to slow down to a crawl and the chairman of the House Highways Subcommittee of the General Assembly wants to take action.

Rep. Arthur Bowers, D-98 Steubenville, is sponsoring a bill that would take $60 million out of state general revenue funds and allocate it to the Department of Transportation.

Of the total, $50 million would go for capital improvements and $10 million for mass transit.

Bowers said that under present law money derived from the state's 7-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax is earmarked for highway purposes. That source is dwindling as a result of fuel conservation programs.

The Steubenville Democrat said, "There is no prohibition against general fund monies being appropriated for highways."

The Jefferson County legislator said no other state department or program has been so directly affected and in such great proportions by the energy crisis as the Department of Transportation.

"No other department will be so greatly hurt," said Bowers. "Inflation already has greatly increased highway construction costs in all areas—labor, steel, asphalt, concrete, right-of-way property costs, and the existing 7-cents-a-gallon state fuel tax has not increased since 1959."

Bowers also said that under the new federal revenue sharing program many other types of capital improvements were made possible, "but not one cent was directed for highways."

J. Phillip Richley, state transportation director, confirmed Bowers' evaluation when he testified on a bill lowering Ohio's speed limits to 55 miles an hour.

Richley said that, while that bill probably would cost his department to lose about 10 per cent of its revenues, gasoline rationing, if it comes, would cost the department $72 million a year.

"There would be a fantastic number of people laid off," he said. "It would virtually put us out of business. We'd have a deficit and there would be no new construction."

Richley said his department already has decided to undertake no new construction between now and June 30 "other than those funded 90 or 100 per cent by the federal government and any emergency projects needed to maintain the health and safety of Ohio motorists."

Metzenbaum Taxes Secret

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— U.S. Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum said Tuesday he would not release copies of his income tax returns in response to John Glenn's financial disclosures.

In a statement, Metzenbaum said he believed the people of Ohio were more concerned with the ability of their public officials to do a good job than with their wealth.

Glenn made Monday what he called the most complete financial disclosure ever by a candidate for public office. His records showed the former astronaut was worth about $768,000.

Metzenbaum has said his net worth is about $3.6 million.

Glenn and Metzenbaum are rivals for the Senate seat Metzenbaum holds by appointment.

Sundry Claims Bill Sparks Assembly Division

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — One of the biggest standoffs in years apparently has developed between the Ohio Senate and House over a $600,000 measure to pay claims against the state.

Unlike ordinary skirmishes that involve partisanship, this dispute cuts clearly between the two chambers and sets the stage for a power showdown. The impasse was underscored Wednesday when the House voted for the second time on a conference committee report on the so-called sundry claims bill — needed to pay claims against the state which cannot be sued. It was defeated by a vote of 60-30 with 66, or a two-thirds majority, required. At issue was the inclusion by the conference committee of $30,000 worth of claims from three former senators who lost their seats in 1966, in the middle of four-year terms, when the legislature was reapportioned.

Claims of $16,000 each were filed by former Sens. Ross Pepple of Lima, a Republican, and Democrats John Corrigan of South Euclid, and Danny D. Johnson of New Philadelphia, based on a then-existing salary of $8,000 per year.

The House refused last year to approve the claims and its will prevailed in the first conference committee report. It was rejected by the Senate with Minority Leader Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, and others saying it is the Senate's "duty to take care of the former senators who lost their seats through no reason of their own."

This year, the House conferees agreed to a compromise that involved settling with the former senators for $10,000 apiece. House Finance Chairman Myrl Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville, said he "didn't particularly like it, but it was the only way we could get a bill. Now, I don't know what we're going to do."

Shoemaker, a veteran of 25 years in the House, in reference to Wednesday's vote, said "I never saw any vote cut across party lines like that one did." Asked if there might be a new joint conference committee to study the problem, he said "I don't know. But there were nine members who didn't vote. They could change things."

Shoemaker, along with Rep. Fred Young, R-38 Dayton, and others pointed out that while senators were insisting on salaries for senators who did not serve, the House is not likely to get the bill passed unless it agrees. "Unless we pay the dues of the former senators, there's not going to be sundry claims bill," said Young.

At the same time, the Dayton Republican pointed out that the bill contains thousands of dollars in delayed payments for citizens injured through the negligence of the state and its employees. He cited one case of a widow and six children whose husband and father was killed in a traffic accident "by a drunken state employee."

One other issue that had divided the two chambers was the refusal of the Republican-controlled Senate to authorize payment of $13,225 to Robert Muhlbaugh of Lima, a Democrat and attorney who represented the attorney general in litigation several years ago that involved Lima State Hospital.

Young reported that the claim now has been paid by Atty. Gen. William J. Brown "although he said at first he didn't think he should have to pay it, and that the funds were not in his budget."

House rejection of the sundry claims bill overshadowed other floor actions of the two chambers. The House put off until next week votes it had planned on major bills beefing up state laws against child abuse and certain questioned consumer practices.

The House approved 85-7 and sent to the Senate a bill strengthening the licensing and inspection of migrant labor camps. Sponsors pointed out that while the state currently regulates such facilities, there is no statutory language making regulation and enforcement uniform.

By a vote of 29-0, senators passed and sent to the House a bill assuring that each of the 88 counties gets at least $10,000 a month from the Local Government Fund.

Sponsoring Sen. Robert T. Secrest, D-20 Cambridge, said the legislation is needed to even out payments to such counties as Vinton which receives about $9,000 at the beginning of a year and from $50,000 to $60,000 in December.

Secrest said the payments are made monthly, based on a percentage of corporate franchise, sales, and personal income tax collected the previous month. But he explained that one of those taxes—the corporate franchise—is computed only once a year.

Sen. Paul R. Matis, R-25 Westlake, won 29-0 Senate approval of a bill permitting the disabled or persons over 65 to vote absentee ballots without a requirement that they certify that they are ill or will be 10 miles away from home on election day. That measure now goes to the house.

GOP Sees Political Storminess

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political storm warnings are up for Republicans, and while President Nixon says special elections don't necessarily foretell November trends, they are likely to influence campaign strategy.

In a campaign year that will bring major changes in Congress, Democrats have captured the first two House seats at stake in special elections.

The major shock to the GOP came when Michigan Democrat Richard VanderVeen won what had been the safe Republican seat vacated by Vice President Gerald R. Ford.

There are three more special elections on the schedule, in Ohio, Michigan and California, all for seats that had been held by Republicans.

Candidates and managers in both parties will be watching. The tactics that work in one election are likely to be applied in others.

What they have seen so far adds up to this: Watergate works as an issue.

In Pennsylvania, Democrat John Murtha won a narrow and still disputed victory after a campaign in which he put little emphasis on the scandals in Washington.

VanderVeen won comfortably after stressing Watergate and, more broadly, the question of Nixon's leadership. He took his cue from national and district polls showing dissatisfaction with the President's performance in office.

"We could not have won without Watergate," said John Martilla, a

Boston political consultant who worked in the VanderVeen campaign. "But we could not have won if we had focused only on Watergate."

He said unemployment, the economy, the energy crisis and other problems all were campaign factors. VanderVeen sought to weave them together with Watergate in a general challenge to Nixon and the administration.

If that kind of campaign works for Democrats elsewhere, Republicans who will face the voters later this year may seek to disassociate themselves from the GOP administration. And that could cost the President allies in Congress.

The President sought to reassure Republicans Wednesday, telling congressional leaders that special elections "often are not harbingers of what might happen."

Such elections, often influenced by local issues and personalities, offer at best an uncertain barometer of November sentiment. And a lot can happen between February and November.

But if Democrats keep winning, the message will not be lost on either party.

Mrs. Meir Forms Minority Cabinet

JERUSALEM (AP) — Premier Golda Meir is forming the first minority government in Israeli history, but it is assured of majority support for its peace negotiations with the Arabs.

The National Religious Party refused to resume its traditional role of junior partner to Mrs. Meir's Labor Alignment because she refused to tighten up religious requirements for Israeli citizenship.

This left the government commitments for only 58 of the 120 seats in the Knesset, the Israeli parliament, on domestic issues. But assurances from other parties promised the 75-year-old premier the support of 66 votes on any matter concerning negotiations with the Arabs.

In theory, Mrs. Meir's fragile coalition faces a continual threat of defeat on any domestic issue on which the rightwing Likud opposition bloc might bring a motion of no confidence. But the Religious party is not likely to bring down the government and force a new election so soon after the Dec. 31 vote on anything but a religious issue.

Mrs. Meir has another week before she must present her new cabinet to the Knesset. She said she did not accept the Religious party's refusal to join as final and was saving it three seats. But she was unwilling to meet its demand that the Law of Return, which grants Israeli citizenship automatically to any Jewish immigrant, be changed to admit converts only if they were converted in accordance with Orthodox Jewish law.

Mrs. Meir scheduled a meeting today with Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and said she had no doubt that he would withdraw his threat earlier this week to stay out of the new government. The one-eyed military hero threatened to take a walk because he felt he was being made the scapegoat for Israel's reverses and heavy casualties at the start of the October war.

Meanwhile, the last Israeli combat soldiers on the west bank of the Suez Canal were crossing the water and Israel was completing its withdrawal from the Egyptian territory it captured in October.

Officials also were busy preparing for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's return next week to try to arrange an agreement for an Israeli withdrawal on the Syrian front and the establishment of a United Nations buffer force between the Syrian and Israeli forces.

Boyle III; Hearing Postponed

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — The hearing on motions by attorneys for W.A. "Tony" Boyle was forced into a third day of legal arguments today after the former United Mine Workers Union president accused of murder became ill in the warm courtroom.

Common Pleas Judge Domenic D. Jerome swiftly recessed the proceedings Wednesday when the 70-year-old Boyle, pale and gaunt, slumped against a table, holding his head in his hands.

"He felt a little faint, but he'll be all right," said D. Frank Kampfe, one of his three lawyers.

Boyle was placed in a wheelchair by deputy U.S. marshals and court attendants and taken to a nearby room where he was attended by a nurse. He then conferred briefly with his lawyers before being driven to Riddle Memorial Hospital where he is held under guard.

Boyle is accused of ordering the 1969 slaying of Joseph "Jock" Yablonski, a UMW rival who unsuccessfully sought the union presidency. Indictments also charge him with murdering Yablonski's wife and daughter, all slain New Year's Eve in their Clarksville, Pa., home.

No Disbarment For Nixon Now

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The president of the American Bar Association says disbarment proceedings against President Nixon shouldn't be started while he is in the White House.

"To harass and attack him now would be a silly and shabby effort which would be taken only by those who hate Nixon," Chesterfield Smith told newsmen Wednesday.

Smith noted that the California Bar has opened a disbarment file against the President, but Smith said disbarment action should not be taken while Nixon is in the White House since he will not be practicing law.

Shoemaker, along with Rep. Fred Young, R-38 Dayton, and others pointed out that while senators were insisting on salaries for senators who did not serve, the House is not likely to get the bill passed unless it agrees. "Unless we pay the dues of the former senators, there's not going to be sundry claims bill," said Young.

At the same time, the Dayton Republican pointed out that the bill contains thousands of dollars in delayed payments for citizens injured through the negligence of the state and its employees. He cited one case of a widow and six children whose husband and father was killed in a traffic accident "by a drunken state employee."

One other issue that had divided the two chambers was the refusal of the Republican-controlled Senate to authorize payment of $13,225 to Robert Muhlbaugh of Lima, a Democrat and attorney who represented the attorney general in litigation several years ago that involved Lima State Hospital.

Young reported that the claim now has been paid by Atty. Gen. William J. Brown "although he said at first he didn't think he should have to pay it, and that the funds were not in his budget."

House rejection of the sundry claims bill overshadowed other floor actions of the two chambers. The House put off until next week votes it had planned on major bills beefing up state laws against child abuse and certain questioned consumer practices.

The House approved 85-7 and sent to the Senate a bill strengthening the licensing and inspection of migrant labor camps. Sponsors pointed out that while the state currently regulates such facilities, there is no statutory language making regulation and enforcement uniform.

By a vote of 29-0, senators passed and sent to the House a bill assuring that each of the 88 counties gets at least $10,000 a month from the Local Government Fund.

Sponsoring Sen. Robert T. Secrest, D-20 Cambridge, said the legislation is needed to even out payments to such counties as Vinton which receives about $9,000 at the beginning of a year and from $50,000 to $60,000 in December.

Secrest said the payments are made monthly, based on a percentage of corporate franchise, sales, and personal income tax collected the previous month. But he explained that one of those taxes—the corporate franchise—is computed only once a year.

Sen. Paul R. Matis, R-25 Westlake, won 29-0 Senate approval of a bill permitting the disabled or persons over 65 to vote absentee ballots without a requirement that they certify that they are ill or will be 10 miles away from home on election day. That measure now goes to the house.

GOP Sees Political Storminess

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political storm warnings are up for Republicans, and while President Nixon says special elections don't necessarily foretell November trends, they are likely to influence campaign strategy.

In a campaign year that will bring major changes in Congress, Democrats have captured the first two House seats at stake in special elections.

The major shock to the GOP came when Michigan Democrat Richard VanderVeen won what had been the safely Republican seat vacated by Vice President Gerald R. Ford.

There are three more special elections on the schedule, in Ohio, Michigan and California, all for seats that had been held by Republicans.

Candidates and managers in both parties will be watching. The tactics that work in one election are likely to be applied in others.

What they have seen so far adds up to this: Watergate works as an issue.

In Pennsylvania, Democrat John Murtha won a narrow and still disputed victory after a campaign in which he put little emphasis on the scandals in Washington.

VanderVeen won comfortably after stressing Watergate and, more broadly, the question of Nixon's leadership. He took his cue from national and district polls showing dissatisfaction with the President's performance in office.

"We could not have won without Watergate," said John Martilla, a

Boston political consultant who worked in the VanderVeen campaign. "But we could not have won if we had focused only on Watergate."

He said unemployment, the economy, the energy crisis and other problems all were campaign factors. VanderVeen sought to weave them together with Watergate in a general challenge to Nixon and the administration.

If that kind of campaign works for Democrats elsewhere, Republicans who will face the voters later this year may seek to disassociate themselves from the GOP administration. And that could cost the President allies in Congress.

The President sought to reassure Republicans Wednesday, telling congressional leaders that special elections "often are not harbingers of what might happen."

Such elections, often influenced by local issues and personalities, offer at best an uncertain barometer of November sentiment. And a lot can happen between February and November.

But if Democrats keep winning, the message will not be lost on either party.

Mrs. Meir Forms Minority Cabinet

JERUSALEM (AP) — Premier Golda Meir is forming the first minority government in Israeli history, but it is assured of majority support for its peace negotiations with the Arabs.

The National Religious Party refused to resume its traditional role of junior partner to Mrs. Meir's Labor Alignment because she refused to tighten up religious requirements for Israeli citizenship.

This left the government commitments for only 58 of the 120 seats in the Knesset, the Israeli parliament, on domestic issues. But assurances from other parties promised the 75-year-old premier the support of 66 votes on any matter concerning negotiations with the Arabs.

In theory, Mrs. Meir's fragile coalition faces a continual threat of defeat on any domestic issue on which the rightwing Likud opposition bloc might bring a motion of no confidence. But the Religious party is not likely to bring down the government and force a new election so soon after the Dec. 31 vote on anything but a religious issue.

Mrs. Meir has another week before she must present her new cabinet to the Knesset. She said she did not accept the Religious party's refusal to join as final and was saving it three seats. But she was unwilling to meet its demand that the Law of Return, which grants Israeli citizenship automatically to any Jewish immigrant, be changed to admit converts only if they were converted in accordance with Orthodox Jewish law.

Mrs. Meir scheduled a meeting today with Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and said she had no doubt that he would withdraw his threat earlier this week to stay out of the new government. The one-eyed military hero threatened to take a walk because he felt he was being made the scapegoat for Israel's reverses and heavy casualties at the start of the October war.

Meanwhile, the last Israeli combat soldiers on the west bank of the Suez Canal were crossing the water and Israel was completing its withdrawal from the Egyptian territory it captured in October.

Officials also were busy preparing for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's return next week to try to arrange an agreement for an Israeli withdrawal on the Syrian front and the establishment of a United Nations buffer force between the Syrian and Israeli forces.

No Disbarment For Nixon Now

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The president of the American Bar Association says disbarment proceedings against President Nixon shouldn't be started while he is in the White House.

"To harass and attack him now would be a silly and shabby effort which would be taken only by those who hate Nixon," Chesterfield Smith told newsmen Wednesday.

Smith noted that the California Bar has proposed a disbarment file against the President, but Smith said disbarment action should not be taken while Nixon is in the White House since he will not be practicing law.

G. C. Murphy Co. Announces Income

G. C. Murphy Company president, W. F. Greenleaf, announced that net income for the year ended Dec. 31, 1973 was $2.27 per share, compared with $2. for 1972. Net income per share for the fourth quarter was $1.43 compared with $1.21 in 1972.

Net income was $8,892,000, an increase of 12.8 per cent.

Sales reached a new record of $470,215,000, up $41,633,000 or 9.7 per cent over the previous year's high.

These results were achieved in spite of sharply higher interest rates and federally imposed controls on merchandise margins.

During the year 13 Murphy's Marts and eight conventional stores were opened while 10 stores were closed, bringing the total number of stores in operation to 528. Selling area increased 906,000 square feet to 9,153,000 square feet at year-end.

At this time 37 new stores are now under construction, lease or option, including 34 Murphy's Marts.

Personal Income Decline Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department says the personal income of Americans declined in January for the first time in 19 months.

Farmer Share Of Food Dollar Jumps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The farmer's share of the nation's food dollar, a measure of where consumer grocery spending goes, jumped to 46 cents last year, the most since 1952.

That meant prices farmers got for raw products sharply outpaced middleman markups, the Agriculture Department said. The figures were included Tuesday in a report on marketing and transportation spreads for food.

A market basket of U.S. farm-produced food cost consumers an average of $1.537 last year, up about $227, or 17.3 per cent, from 1972. The farm share was $700, a gain of 33.5 per cent, officials said.

The farm-to-retail spread, or middleman share, was $837 in 1973, 6.5 per cent above the 1972 level.

Converted to a food-dollar basis, the 46 cents equivalent received by farmers in 1973 was up six cents from 1972. It was 38 cents in 1971 and 39 cents in 1970.

In most years the past two decades, farmers have received less than 40 cents from each $1 spent for food in stores. The share climbed to 47 cents in 1952 and had been higher than that in the late 1940s, according to USDA records.

Looking ahead, the report predicted that higher prices for some farm commodities and further gains for middleman markups will add another boost to retail food prices.

But the report predicted, as USDA had earlier, that retail food prices "are expected to stabilize by mid-year and possibly decline" later if farm prices taper off as some experts believe.

The drop was partially attributed to job layoffs stemming from the energy shortage.

However, the department also reported Tuesday that housing starts, another key measure of the economy's performance, increased in January after several months of steep decline.

Personal income declined $4.1 billion in January to an annual rate of $1,084.9 billion. During the previous month, the same income statistic had shown a rise of $10.2 billion.

The January decline in personal income was the first since June, 1972, when it dropped $700 million and the biggest since a $10.1 billion decline in July, 1971.

The Commerce Department said the dropoff resulted from reduced employment and a short work week in commodity producing industries, a decline in government subsidy payments to farmers and higher employee contributions for Social Security.

Manufacturing payrolls decreased $3.5 billion, with the largest declines in the transportation equipment industry, including autos, the department said. The auto industry has been hit hard by the energy crisis, which has reduced demand for big cars.

Construction payrolls decreased $1.1 billion in January and farm income was off by $2.8 billion, the department reported.

In a separate report, the Commerce Department said privately owned housing starts in January totalled nearly 1.5 million units, at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, up from a construction rate of 1.4 million units in December.

The increase marked a slight upturn toward the housing construction rate of nearly 2.5 million units recorded in January, 1973. The department said it offered hopeful signs that declining interest rates would spur investment in home building.

2 Candidates Off Ballots

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Secretary of State Ted W. Brown Wednesday declared two candidates ineligible to run for election because they didn't file enough signatures to qualify.

Brown said Dale R. Reusch of Lodi, an announced candidate for governor, fell 77 signatures short of the needed 1,000. The other candidate Emma Lila Fundaburk of Bowling Green, who wanted to run for the U.S. Senate, was 80 names short, Brown said.

The secretary of state also announced a hearing Friday on a protest accusing William Kenneth Brown of using a false name on his petitions for the Democratic secretary of state nomination.

The protest was filed by Dennis Thompson, another candidate for the post, who contends that W. K. Brown used the name of William "Bill" Brown on his petitions and is trying to trade on the name of "Bill" Brown who is attorney general.

The secretary of state could remove W. K. Brown's name from the ballot or require him to use his full name. Either decision could be subject to court review.

Writer's Family To Get Visas

MOSCOW (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn's wife says she and her family have been promised quick approval of their application for exit visas to join the exiled writer in Western Europe.

Natalya Solzhenitsyn said Soviet authorities also told her that "in principle" her husband's books and papers could be taken to the West.

Solzhenitsyn said in an interview earlier this week that unless he could get the research materials he assembled for the "historical novel of revolutionary times" he began with "August 1914," he would have to abandon the multivolume project. He said in that case he would write about the Soviet present.

Crude Oil 'Leaking' Into U.S.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—About two million barrels of crude oil each day are leaking through the Arab oil embargo, a major oil company executive said Wednesday.

Granville Dutton, manager of utilization and joint operations for Sun Oil Co., said most of the oil is being funneled through the Caribbean.

"Through the ingenuity of the American trader, we're getting quite a bit, probably on the order of two million barrels a day," Dutton said.

Caribbean refineries are buying the oil, refining it and shipping it to the United States, he said.

"They're making a good profit out of it, but they're providing a real service," he said.

He said the Arab nations are aware of the leaks and permit them.

Dutton said the more moderate Arabs don't mind supplying the United States, and more militant Arabs see the leaks as one more thing they can threaten to cut off.

He said the energy crisis amounts to a shortage of about 10 per cent—

"serious, but it's no reason to panic."

He blamed the crisis on the government.

"Plain and simple, government interference with the oil and gas industry has caused the energy crisis," he said. "There's been no economic incentive to develop energy resources."

The bald eagle born Mary 26, 1973, in Washington's National Zoo is only the fifth of these birds ever known to be hatched in captivity, says Sports Afield.

By EILEEN EASTERDAY, PHONE 986-3481

The first order of business this week is to apprise everyone of the forthcoming birthday of a very special person so cards can be put in the mail for what I hope will be a whopper of a card shower. 'Tis none other than Gertrude Schleich, Space 160, 10550 Dunlap Crossing Road, Whittier, Calif. 90606 who will be celebrating on Feb. 28. So, come on now, let's make it a really good day for a truly good "gal" and keep in mind you need not know a person to wish them a happy day.

We have concerned thoughts and daily wishes for the return of good health to our jovial dear friend Mr. George Hamman who is a patient in Room 603 at University Hospital in Columbus.

We were so pleased to have 91-year-old good friend Arthur Frazier visit with us on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Frazier is recuperating from recent surgery beautifully and how good it was to see him out taking his daily "constitutional" once again.

Ron and Marilyn Bush and boys Mike and Tim overnights with Marilyn's parents Mr. and Mrs. Edwin (Doc) Dupler at Somerset Saturday. Doc had been discharged Saturday a.m. from Grant Hospital and the Bush family had taken him to his home.

Canasta Cub met at the Easterday home week ago Tuesday with the "carefully selected" prizes going to Dorothy (Mrs. Lawrence) Carle, high (she was subbing for Jackie Hopper); Colleen (Mrs. Max) Justice, traveling; Margene (Mrs. Harvey) Looney, low; Eileen (who dat?) Easterday, door.

Helping to make the evening its usual real fun time were Mae (Mrs. Herschel) Litter, Pearl (Mrs. Purl) Cochenour, Sue (Mrs. John) Graffis and Esther (Mrs. Charles) Picklesimer. Trying to be terribly uptown and top drawer the hostess served refreshments from the dining room table but with such a "ding-a-ling" group it was quite futile to "put on the dawg".

Our good buddy Pete Cochenour has not been a bit well but he continues to his employment each day and our best wishes and admiration go with him.

Monday visitors at the home of Arthur and Edwin Frazier were Mr. and Mrs. William Merriman and daughters Debbie Jo and Lisa (whose married name Grandpa Frazier could not recall). Also adding pleasure to the day was Grandpa Art's great-grandson (Lisa's son). Four generations enjoying each other.

Gospel Sing

Want your spirits to soar? Want an evening of contented relaxation? Do you enjoy soul stirring, toe tapping music? To fulfill those questions in the affirmative all you have to do is attend the fourth annual Gospel Sing sponsored by the Monroe Men's Club to be held March 2, in the Westfall High School auditorium beginning at 7:30 p.m. and located on State Route 56 west of Circleville and southwest of Mt. Sterling.

A substantial savings (like 1.50 per ticket) can be had by purchasing tickets in advance and the last day for buying in advance is Feb. 27 so do not tarry.

Tickets can be purchased at Winfough's Grocery Store in the Five Points community or from many Men's Club members among whom are Richard Everman (he informs me he has a good supply at his office at Westfall and will be happy to sell them all), Jim Akison, who is president of the club, Floyd Zimmerman and Tom Greer (he also can be contacted at Westfall) and of course super salesman Gillis Conley who sold me on attending my first Gospel Sing and how glad I am that I did go—it was really tremendous and I've eagerly awaited each annual sing, ever since. Will I see you there this year?

It is the general opinion of our Becki, Celia, Mike McCain and Carl Fuller that standing in line for nearly two hours and paying a small fortune to see "The Exorcist" isn't quite all it could be and that basically they were "suckers" for a super slick publicity job. We all live and learn!

Our Celia and her counterpart Maria returned exhausted but happy Saturday night from an eight-day tour of New York City and Washington D. C. The tour was under the auspices of the International Fellowship Exchange Program out of Buffalo where the students first convened before beginning their sojourn.

We surely missed our pretty little Celia while she was away and were delighted to have her home again if only for a few short days since this coming Sunday she will leave again for eight days on a tour of the Grand Canyon, Disneyland and other points of interest in the western part of our country.

While we will miss her ever so much we are happy for her that she has the opportunity to see some of the exciting parts of this great country of ours. May she ever remember with fondness her experiences in this United States of America.

One of the happier experiences, I am certain, was having Ralph and Elizabeth Dunkle spend Sunday afternoon in our home chatting with Celia and Maria. The Dunkles' son Douglas is in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil and will be there yet for another twelve months teaching in the schools there. Each of the girls know the area where Doug is quite well and will be in touch with him when they return to their native land. Isn't it wonderful how "things" work out?

License Tags

Okay, now, we can bring you the information regarding the reserving of numbers for the new 1974 license tags. Our village deputy registrar Helen Whitesed had not received the necessary application blanks until attending a meeting in Lancaster yesterday evening (Tuesday) so now she is ready to start business. Her first day will be this Saturday, with hours that day to be 9-5 and each succeeding Saturday will have the same hours through March 12.

Now, do please note that from Monday through Friday her office at 106 S. Main St., will be open for business from 9:15 a.m. until 7 p.m. The vehicle title and, if at all possible, the vehicle registration card should be brought along when application for tags is made.

Due to the tags being reflectorized this year there is an increase in the cost with each being $12.00 (twelve dollars)—this also reflects the charge for reserving the tag number which charge is one buck) or $17.00 (seventeen dollars) in those areas where the local community tax fee applies (this also reflects the one dollar charge for reserving service).

Any one living in the community local tax fee area and applying for tags in our village will be required to pay the higher cost—only those who live in a non-taxed area will receive their tags for the twelve dollars charge.

To sum up—if you wish to retain a certain license number you must make application between Saturday, and the deadline of March 12. There will be no Sunday hours. Hope this answers the questions of the many calls we have had.

Miss Cora Beth Whitesed received her diploma, cap and pin at ceremonies held at Career Academy in Columbus last Thursday, certifying that he had quite successfully completed her schooling in the field of Medical Assistant. Attending the exercises were Mrs. Paul Whitesed and Mrs. Bill Swaney, Cora's mother and sister.

Cora is now at home with her parents and will shortly begin employment in her chosen field. We wish her every

An increasing cloud cover over Ohio today with rain tonight and Friday are the predictions of the weatherman, bringing an end to some unseasonable fine weather.

Temperatures are expected to be even a little warmer, but the National Weather Service said a new storm in the Texas area is spreading a thick cloud cover north and eastward with the leading edge already into western Ohio.

Southeast winds will increase during the day helping to warm the state, but rain which has reached Missouri and Wisconsin will continue to work its way eastward. Thunderstorms have broken out ahead of the low and may even work their way into Ohio by Friday.

The low is forecast to move very close to Ohio Friday so rain and strong winds are forecast then. As the storm moves east of Ohio the rain will change to snow flurries Friday night.

Temperatures fell into the upper 20s and low 30s around sunrise Thursday but southeasterly winds will raise the temperatures into the upper 40s and mid 50s today and tomorrow.

Among the many good things that come our way in life we unfortunately are oft-times faced with the sadder aspects and one of those was being called early this morning and told of the death of Marvene Kneec. Our heart aches for the devoted members of her immediate family—her husband Raymond, her daughter and her two sons and her grandchildren. A quiet, unassuming woman she enjoyed her home and family and found much pleasure in seeing to their comforts. Our sincere and heartfelt condolences to all who grieve Marvene's untimely passing.

This is not really the place to insert a bit of frivolity but it must be told that the L-K bowling team of the Tuesday Morning Glories league at Circle D can not be counted down and out just yet since they bowled their "adversaries" the Lawson team this past Tuesday and copped two of the three games so this puts the two of us (L-K and Lawson's) back into a tie for first at least one more go round. That Candy Arledge outdid herself, thank goodness, and Sharon Weethee held in there right well, too. Helen Ford and I were trying all the way. Really!

Think About: Man's work is the food of life; Appreciation is its seasoning. Be with you again, next week, the Lord willing. Take Care.

Judge Dismisses Search Lawsuit

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge Wednesday dismissed a $7 million damage suit against four high-ranking city officials in a case stemming from an accidental drug search of an expectant couple's home.

Judge David Porter said the incident "was an honest mistake" and ruled the four officials "had no personal involvement."

Named in the suit were Mayor Theodore Berry, City Manager E. Robert Turner, Safety Director Henry Sandman and Police Chief Carl Goodin.

Cattle Scabies Remain Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cattle scabies, a skin disease caused by tiny mites, continues to crop up in widely spread areas of the Great Plains despite control efforts by state and federal authorities.

The Agriculture Department said Wednesday federal quarantines have been imposed in parts of half a dozen counties in Texas, Kansas and Nebraska as a result of scabies outbreaks.

Counties partly quarantined because of new outbreaks include: Texas — Lamb, Parmer, Hockley and Lubbock; Kansas — Wichita; and Nebraska — Otoe.

Will I see you there this year?

It is the general opinion of our Becki, Celia, Mike McCain and Carl Fuller that standing in line for nearly two hours and paying a small fortune to see "The Exorcist" isn't quite all it could be and that basically they were "suckers" for a super slick publicity job. We all live and learn!

Our Celia and her counterpart Maria returned exhausted but happy Saturday night from an eight-day tour of New York City and Washington D. C. The tour was under the auspices of the International Fellowship Exchange Program out of Buffalo where the students first convened before beginning their sojourn.

We surely missed our pretty little Celia while she was away and were delighted to have her home again if only for a few short days since this coming Sunday she will leave again for eight days on a tour of the Grand Canyon, Disneyland and other points of interest in the western part of our country.

While we will miss her ever so much we are happy for her that she has the opportunity to see some of the exciting parts of this great country of ours. May she ever remember with fondness her experiences in this United States of America.

One of the happier experiences, I am certain, was having Ralph and Elizabeth Dunkle spend Sunday afternoon in our home chatting with Celia and Maria. The Dunkles' son Douglas is in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil and will be there yet for another twelve months teaching in the schools there. Each of the girls know the area where Doug is quite well and will be in touch with him when they return to their native land. Isn't it wonderful how "things" work out?

License Tags

Okay, now, we can bring you the information regarding the reserving of numbers for the new 1974 license tags. Our village deputy registrar Helen Whitesed had not received the necessary application blanks until attending a meeting in Lancaster yesterday evening (Tuesday) so now she is ready to start business. Her first day will be this Saturday, with hours that day to be 9-5 and each succeeding Saturday will have the same hours through March 12.

Now, do please note that from Monday through Friday her office at 106 S. Main St., will be open for business from 9:15 a.m. until 7 p.m. The vehicle title and, if at all possible, the vehicle registration card should be brought along when application for tags is made.

Due to the tags being reflectorized this year there is an increase in the cost with each being $12.00 (twelve dollars)—this also reflects the charge for reserving the tag number which charge is one buck) or $17.00 (seventeen dollars) in those areas where the local community tax fee applies (this also reflects the one dollar charge for reserving service).

Any one living in the community local tax fee area and applying for tags in our village will be required to pay the higher cost—only those who live in a non-taxed area will receive their tags for the twelve dollars charge.

To sum up—if you wish to retain a certain license number you must make application between Saturday, and the deadline of March 12. There will be no Sunday hours. Hope this answers the questions of the many calls we have had.

Miss Cora Beth Whitesed received her diploma, cap and pin at ceremonies held at Career Academy in Columbus last Thursday, certifying that he had quite successfully completed her schooling in the field of Medical Assistant. Attending the exercises were Mrs. Paul Whitesed and Mrs. Bill Swaney, Cora's mother and sister.

Cora is now at home with her parents and will shortly begin employment in her chosen field. We wish her every

An increasing cloud cover over Ohio today with rain tonight and Friday are the predictions of the weatherman, bringing an end to some unseasonable fine weather.

Temperatures are expected to be even a little warmer, but the National Weather Service said a new storm in the Texas area is spreading a thick cloud cover north and eastward with the leading edge already into western Ohio.

Southeast winds will increase during the day helping to warm the state, but rain which has reached Missouri and Wisconsin will continue to work its way eastward. Thunderstorms have broken out ahead of the low and may even work their way into Ohio by Friday.

The low is forecast to move very close to Ohio Friday so rain and strong winds are forecast then. As the storm moves east of Ohio the rain will change to snow flurries Friday night.

Temperatures fell into the upper 20s and low 30s around sunrise Thursday but southeasterly winds will raise the temperatures into the upper 40s and mid 50s today and tomorrow.

Among the many good things that come our way in life we unfortunately are oft-times faced with the sadder aspects and one of those was being called early this morning and told of the death of Marvene Kneece. Our heart aches for the devoted members of her immediate family—her husband Raymond, her daughter and her two sons and her grandchildren. A quiet, unassuming woman she enjoyed her home and family and found much pleasure in seeing to their comforts. Our sincere and heartfelt condolences to all who grieve Marvene's untimely passing.

This is not really the place to insert a bit of frivolity but it must be told that the L-K bowling team of the Tuesday Morning Glories league at Circle D can not be counted down and out just yet since they bowled their "adversaries" the Lawson team this past Tuesday and copped two of the three games so this puts the two of us (L-K and Lawson's) back into a tie for first at least one more go round. That Candy Arledge outdid herself, thank goodness, and Sharon Weethee held in there right well, too. Helen Ford and I were trying all the way. Really!

Think About: Man's work is the food of life; Appreciation is its seasoning. Be with you again, next week, the Lord willing. Take Care.

Judge Dismisses Search Lawsuit

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge Wednesday dismissed a $7 million damage suit against four high-ranking city officials in a case stemming from an accidental drug search of an expectant couple's home.

Judge David Porter said the incident "was an honest mistake" and ruled the four officials "had no personal involvement."

Named in the suit were Mayor Theodore Berry, City Manager E. Robert Turner, Safety Director Henry Sandman and Police Chief Carl Goodin.

Cattle Scabies Remain Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cattle scabies, a skin disease caused by tiny mites, continues to crop up in widely spread areas of the Great Plains despite control efforts by state and federal authorities.

The Agriculture Department said Wednesday federal quarantines have been imposed in parts of half a dozen counties in Texas, Kansas and Nebraska as a result of scabies outbreaks.

Counties partly quarantined because of new outbreaks include: Texas — Lamb, Parmer, Hockley and Lubbock; Kansas — Wichita; and Nebraska — Otoe.

Brett Christy, 115-pound, sophomore; Joe Smith, 122-pound, senior; Jim Cordle, 135-pound, sophomore; Roger Davis, 148-pound, senior; and Tim Wilkinson, 188-pound, junior. Coach Brent Bell of Circleville accepted the league championship trophy on behalf of his Tigers who captured the league wrestling meet with a total of 83½ points. This is the third straight time the Red and Black grapplers have taken the title.

Other members of the All-League wrestling team were: Joel Smith, 129-pound, junior, Wilmington; Neal Barreras, 141-pound, senior, Hillsboro; John Hastings, 158-pound, senior, Hillsboro; Jon Davis, 170-pound, senior, Wilmington; John Hale, 178-pound, junior, Wilmington; Bob Cyrus, heavyweight, senior, Hillsboro. Dave Persinger, 6-foot-6, senior, Miami Trace, was the honorary captain of the star studded basketball squad.

Other first team members were: Kline; Kevin Bailey, 5-foot-9, junior, Hillsboro; Jeff Wallace, 6-foot-6, senior, Washington C.H.; Doug Phillips, 6-foot-3, sophomore, Washington C.H.; and Dave Joslin, 6-foot-3, junior, Madison Plains. Named to the second team of the star

Vince Chickarella, head basketball coach at Capital University, was the guest speaker at the affair. He did a fine job with a speech that was informative, humorous and short and to the point.

Alvin Dark Heads Oakland Athletics

OAKLAND (AP) — Alvin Dark, who left a last-place baseball team in turmoil seven years ago, is coming back to take over the Oakland Athletics with a massive payroll and other problems.

Controversial owner Charles O. Finley told a news conference Wednesday that Dark, 52, was returning to the two-time American League and World Series titlists as a replacement for exiled Dick Williams. Finley left no doubts he hadn't changed much when he said:

"Yes, he has been manager of this club before. Yes, he was fired. Yes, he is coming back to manage this club. Yes, he expects to be fired again some day, but he said he hopes it'll be a hell of a lot longer stay than the last time."

Dark, who brought the San Francisco Giants to a National League pennant in 1962, was Finley's manager for the Kansas City A's in 1966 and part of 1967 before Finley fired him in the midst of a near player rebellion. He came back with smiles Wednesday. "Mistakes were made on both sides and things have changed," Dark said. "It is beyond any manager's dream to come into a situation like this, where the team has already won two World Series in a row."

And he admitted that he would not attempt to challenge Finley's right to run the ball club whenever Finley felt the need. And Finley noted that as owner and general manager, he expected to have a say in what happened on the field.

Williams, who left to take the New York Yankees managerial post, still had two years left on a contract he signed with Finley. Since leaving the A's after last year's World Series, Williams has been told by a federal court he cannot manage for any team other than the A's for the 1974 and 1975 seasons.

Dark has been out of baseball since the 1971 season, when he was fired by the Cleveland Indians. The former major league infielder with a lifetime batting average of .289 said he had changed in the last 2½ years. "I gotten myself straightened out and I think I can get along with anyone now. I'm a better man than I was then."

Reggie Jackson, one of two players who attended the news conference at which Dark was presented, said, "I'm sure he's made adjustments. He had problems with young players in Kansas City and Cleveland. Here, he's getting guys who already know discipline."

Jackson said he didn't know Dark but said, "I've heard he has a tremendous baseball mind."

Technical Fouls Called Before Cage Game Started

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ever hear of a high school team starting a basketball game by shooting 10 straight technical fouls?

It happened in the Mount Vernon area last week because Cardington Coach Jerrold Smith gave incorrect numbers for his 10 players for the official scorebook.

Each wrong number cost Smith's squad a technical. Jack Robertson of Sparta Hiland sank seven of the 10 shots to give his team a 7-0 lead before the first center jump.

Smith wiggled off the hook though. Cardington won 56-47.

Around Ohio: Rick Stahl, a 6-foot-1 senior guard from St. Henry in Mercer County, poured in 57 points last week-end against Bradford.

Kettering Alter, second ranked in Class AAA, wrapped up its first unbeaten regular season in its 12-year history Tuesday night. Alter severed Dayton Chaminade-Julienne's 13-game winning streak in the 78-68 finale.

Fairborn Park Hills could make only 17 per cent of its 69 floor shots in a 61-46 setback to Dayton Carroll.

Washington Court House won its first undisputed South Central Ohio basketball title in 18 seasons. Chillicothe is celebrating its first back-to-back Central Ohio crowns in the winter sport.

Wellsville trailed Steubenville Catholic 19-2 last week before rallying to keep its record perfect this season. Uniontown Lake, 14-4, had its most successful year since a 1957 consolidation of Hartville and Uniontown.

Bob Rupert of Class AAA king Canton McKinley has a 333-88 career record, including 333-88 at McKinley. At Springfield North, Don Henderson has piled up a 66-4 record in his last 70 games. He was 18-0 two years ago and the same this season.

Toledo Scott has a good omen for the tournaments. Jim Robinson drew Cincinnati Elder last year when he was Cincinnati Western Hills mentor and Elder won the state tournament title. Robinson, now at Toledo St. Francis, drew Scott as his opening opponent in the Toledo District.

Sidney Lehman, winning 11 straight for a 17-1 mark, has been a fourth quarter team. Lehman has won nine of the 10 games in which it was ahead by four points, even or trailing by four points after three periods.

Niles and Howland are first round tournament foes after playing each other in the regular season finale for the third time in four years. Maplewood peeled off 13 straight victories for a 19-1 record, best in the Trumbull County school's history.

Craig Ellis, 6-3 senior guard for Dayton Wayne, pumped in 20 points in his last game to set a Western Ohio League scoring mark of 221 points in nine games.

Ace Frosh Gain Tourney Final Berth

Bloom Carroll and Amanda-Clearcreek meet in the finals of the Mid State Freshman basketball tournament 10:30 a.m. at Amanda-Clearcreek High School.

The consolation game at 9 a.m. pits Pickerington and Canal Winchester. To gain the finals, the Aces defeated Pickerington 48-47 and Bloom Carroll beat Canal Winchester 46-25.

Both the A-C frosh and junior high teams have gained the finals in their respective tournaments. The junior high, sporting an 11-1 record, are coached by Will Pratt and the freshman with a 7-5 mark by Larry Beougher.

Cougars Top Virginia

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Carolina Cougars turned in a strong come-from-behind effort against Virginia Wednesday night and Coach Larry Brown was pleased.

"My main concern at this time is to play well," said Brown, "and we did that tonight. All of our guards played well, especially Joe Caldwell on defense."

Caldwell, normally a forward, made a rare appearance in the backcourt for about half the game, helping the Cougars to a 128-121 American Basketball Association victory. Eight Cougars scored in double figures and center Jim Chones contributed a team record seven blocked shots.

Elsewhere in the ABA, New York trimmed Memphis 117-104, Denver beat Kentucky 124-117, and San Diego topped Utah 109-97.

Caldwell took scoring honors for Carolina with 21 points, Ted McClain followed with 19 and Chones contributed 18.

Jim Eakins contributed 23 points and Dave Twardzik had 21 for the Squires. The victory kept Carolina 3½ games behind first-place New York in the East Division. Kentucky is second, three games out.

Tony Oliva batted .291 and drove in 92 runs in 146 games as a designated hitter with the Minnesota Twins last season.

Cougars Top Virginia

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Carolina Cougars turned in a strong come-from-behind effort against Virginia Wednesday night and Coach Larry Brown was pleased.

"My main concern at this time is to play well," said Brown, "and we did that tonight. All of our guards played well, especially Joe Caldwell on defense."

Caldwell, normally a forward, made a rare appearance in the backcourt for about half the game, helping the Cougars to a 128-121 American Basketball Association victory. Eight Cougars scored in double figures and center Jim Chones contributed a team record seven blocked shots.

Elsewhere in the ABA, New York trimmed Memphis 117-104, Denver beat Kentucky 124-117, and San Diego topped Utah 109-97.

Caldwell took scoring honors for Carolina with 21 points, Ted McClain followed with 19 and Chones contributed 18.

Jim Eakins contributed 23 points and Dave Twardzik had 21 for the Squires.

The victory kept Carolina 3½ games behind first-place New York in the East Division. Kentucky is second, three games out.

Tony Oliva batted .291 and drove in 92 runs in 146 games as a designated hitter with the Minnesota Twins last season.

Wolfpack Defeats Duke

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
North Carolina State is up — and so is David Thompson.
Because the Wolfpack was elevated to No. 1 this week, Thompson is playing at the top of his game.
The proud North Carolina State star was on his toes Wednesday night, leading his teammates to a 113-87 basketball victory over Duke.
“I wondered how we would react to being Number One. It must have motivated us — that may have been the reason Thompson played so well,” said North Carolina State Coach Norm Sloan.
The keyed-up Thompson scored 40 points, collected 14 rebounds, made two steals and blocked two shots as the North Carolina State players ran away from their Atlantic Coast Conference colleagues.

Elsewhere among the nation's ranked teams, No. 5 Maryland whipped Duquesne 98-72; No. 6 North Carolina stopped Miami of Ohio 83-69; No. 7 Pitt trimmed Temple 56-49 and No. 14 South Carolina defeated Virginia Tech 82-71.
North Carolina State took charge from the start, soaring to a 31-18 lead behind the torrid Thompson. It was 60-43 at the half and with about six minutes left, Sloan had taken his last starter out of the game.
The Wolfpack's full-court press gave Duke a devil of a time, inducing 28 turnovers. In addition, the nation's No. 1 team outrebounded the Blue Devils, 57-43.

John Lucas and Len Elmore combined for 53 points to lead Maryland's victory. Elmore had eight points and Lucas six as the Terps outscored Duquesne 18-4 in the first four minutes of the second half to open up a 58-40 lead.
Lucas finished with 27 points and nine assists and Elmore had 26 points and 17 rebounds. Their standout performances helped Maryland win its 18th game in 22 starts.
Bobby Jones scored a careerhigh 29 points, sparking North Carolina over Miami of Ohio.
Pitt beat Temple with 11 foul shots in the last four minutes. A free throw by Lew Hill put the Panthers ahead for at 46-45 and Keith Starr helped them put the game away with two more shots from the foul line.

Brian Winters scored 21 points and Nate Davis and Alexander English each had 19 rebounds to lead South Carolina's 18th success in 22 games.
In other games, it was Wake Forest 93, St. Francis, Pa., 69; Cincinnati 68, Xavier 56; LaSalle 104, Villanova 66; Penn State 83, West Virginia 63; Syracuse 80, Niagara 60, and St. Bonaventure 85, Canisius 82.
In New York, Lee Hollerbach, a 6-foot-6 sophomore from Bridgeport University, extended his own NCAA record for consecutive field goals when he connected on his 22nd straight shot. Iona defeated Bridgeport 72-69.

BGSU Tops Western Michigan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bowling Green basketball Coach Pat Haley conceded his team “had it when we needed it” in squeaking past Western Michigan Wednesday night to move to within a half-game of the Mid-American Conference lead.
Haley said the Falcons played “probably better than we really are” in the first half, when they built up a healthy lead that helped carry them to a 68-63 triumph.
The victory gave Bowling Green a 7-

4 league mark and sole possession of second place in the standings behind Ohio University, with a 7-3 record.
Toledo dropped from second to third place with a 6-4 mark by virtue of a 71-69 loss to Central Michigan Wednesday night.
The Falcons charged to a 19-6 lead in the first five minutes of play, then went on to a 10-1 scoring spurt to take a commanding 38-19 advantage over the Broncos late in the first half.
But Western Michigan opened the second half with eight straight points and kept chipping away until finally moving to within one point of the Falcons, 64-63.

But that was to be all of the scoring for the Broncos.
Toledo stalled for a minute and a half, then increased the margin by two points on a pair of free throws by Skip Howard with 52 seconds left to play and iced the victory with a field goal by Jeff Montgomery as the clock showed 23 seconds remaining.
Toledo blew a 40-33 lead in falling to Central Michigan, now 5-5 in the MAC.
“We were careless,” Rockets Coach Bob Nichols said. “We made poor decisions when we had the lead in regard to shorts and passes and general over-all play.”
Toledo led the entire game until Central Michigan's Jim McElroy sank the winning bucket on a layup with four seconds left to play.
“We knew we could win even when we were down,” said CMU Coach Dick Parfitt. “Our guys not only have confidence in themselves, but in the other guys on the team.”
Playing outside the league, Kent State, shooting a sizzling 59 per cent from the field, whipped Akron 85-70, while Miami became the 19th victim of sixth-ranked North Carolina, 83-69.
Tournament-minded Cincinnati rolled over crosstown rival Xavier 68-56 for its 11th triumph in 13 games.
Lloyd Batts led the Bearcat attack with 21 points, while Xavier's Mike Plunkett took game scoring honors with 23 points.
In Hoosier-Buckeye Conference action, Findlay beat Earlham 81-73 as former Toledo Woodward High School teammates Nelson Overton and Jerry Davis scored 28 and 26 points, respectively, and Bluffton downed Manchester 110-96.

Defiance defeated nonconference foe Goshen 97-72.
John Carroll came from behind to beat Case Western Reserve 90-77 in a Presidents' Conference game.
Urbana clinched at least a second place finish in the MidOhio Conference by edging Rio Grande 99-97.
Elsewhere, it was Central State 79, Northern Kentucky State 58; Malone 105, Waynesburg 84; Wright State 99, Bellarmine 95.

Bruins Tie North Stars, 5-5

By BRUCE LOWITT

“Phil Esposito does what he wants to do with the puck,” Boston Coach Bep Guidolin explained. “That's why he's Phil Esposito.”
In other words, when he wants to put the puck in the net, he does — the way he did three times against Minnesota Tuesday night. And when he wants to hold onto the puck himself, he does — the way he did in the final 40 seconds to preserve the Bruins' 5-5 National Hockey League tie with the North Stars.
In other NHL games, Chicago shut out California 3-0, Philadelphia defeated Detroit 3-1, Toronto beat Buffalo 4-2 and Pittsburgh tied St. Louis 1-1. In the World Hockey Association, Houston routed Jersey 7-2, Los Angeles beat New England 4-2 and Edmonton whipped Winnipeg 4-1.

GETTING READY FOR ASSAULT ON RECORD—Atlanta Braves' Hank Aaron works on leg muscles as he begins training for the 1974 baseball season in Atlanta, Ga., gymnasium. Aaron needs one homer to tie Babe Ruth's record of 714.

House Action 'Kills' Federal Energy Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Rules Committee has erected a potentially fatal roadblock in the path of emergency energy legislation already threatened by a presidential veto.
The Rules Committee voted Wednesday to allow members to lodge parliamentary challenges against some of the more controversial provisions in the compromise bill when it reaches the House floor.
House Commerce chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., said the Rules Committee action had “killed” the bill.
Farm Exports On Target, Data Shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new analysis by the Agriculture Department shows that farm exports by Jan. 1 were well on their way to a target of $19.3 billion predicted for this fiscal year, up nearly 50 per cent from $12.9 billion in 1972-73.
During the first six months of the fiscal year that began last July 1, exports of all farm products totaled $9.9 billion, nearly double the July-December total of a year earlier, the department said.
“Exports of grains and preparations were up 154 per cent, accounting for around two-thirds of the over-all increase,” the department's Economic Research Service said Wednesday in a monthly issue of Foreign Agricultural Trade of the United States.
“Exports of cotton, tobacco, soybeans, meats, live cattle, fruits, nuts, vegetables and poultry meats were also up substantially,” the report said.
Nearly three-fourths of the July-December increase from a year earlier — a boost of $4.7 billion — was due to higher prices. Those increases were particularly sharp for grains, cotton, meat, tobacco, dried beans and peas, alfalfa meal and nuts, the report said.
Over-all, prices averaged 61 per cent higher than a year earlier during the six months. Still, the report said, quantities exported in July-December were up more than one-fourth.

No license is required to fish in Jamaica. Anglers may charter a boat and go after salt-water fish such as sailfish, marlin, bluefin, yellowfin and tuna.

Floor action on the measure was postponed until next week, reportedly to give House leaders a chance to convince members of the Rules Committee to change their vote.
Under the resolution adopted Wednesday, members can raise parliamentary points of order against sections of the bill providing for an oil price rollback and giving the administration temporary authority to put energy conservation plans into effect without first sending them to Congress. The resolution also calls for a separate vote on the section in the bill giving President Nixon the power to order gasoline rationing.
If either of the points of order is sustained or if the House votes to delete the rationing section, the bill no longer would conform with the Senate-passed version and a new SenateHouse conference would have to be convened.
The Senate passed the bill Tuesday despite a warning from federal energy chief William E. Simon that the President would veto it. Senate Interior chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., predicted the Senate could override a veto, but House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., said the House would sustain a veto.
The administration objects to a number of provisions in the bill, including the oil price rollback and the extension of unemployment benefits to workers laid off by fuel shortages.
Figures provided by the House Commerce Committee show that the rollback would reduce the pump price of gasoline by as much as four cents per gallon and would cut soaring propane prices in half.
The White House, along with legislators from oil-producing states, claims that the rollback would discourage production of additional supplies of oil needed to meet the current shortages.

No Sebring Auto Race This Year

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — For the first time in 23 years, the roaring grandfather of international auto racing in the United States will be silenced.
Promoters of this year's version of the 12 Hours of Sebring, formerly one of four international auto endurance races, said Wednesday that severe gasoline shortages in Central Florida have forced them to cancel the event previously set for March 23.
“It's not held at Sebring and probably nowhere,” said Jim Bishop, president of the sanctioning International Motorsports Association, of Fairfield, Conn.
This year's event, like last year's, would have been a GT race with a field of mostly domestic cars, a step down from the previous races featuring many top foreign drivers.
“We did have some exploratory talks about having a race at Daytona on the vacant date but there appears to be not enough time,” said Bishop.
Sebring was one of four world manufacturers' championship races for unlimited prototype cars, along with the Targa Florio in Italy, the 24-hour Le Mans in France and the Daytona 24-hour run.
There had also been talk of postponing the race to an October date. But race coordinator Reggie Smith of Fort Lauderdale said it isn't likely.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Make good use of that aggressive personality you have. Someone with political contacts and "pull" could be very useful if you take the initiative.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Your spirit of restlessness and nervous energy continues, but don't let it lead you to erratic behavior. You could land in "hot water."

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Rumors now circulating could undermine your confidence if you let them. Use that optimism and good judgement of yours and ignore them.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Restrictions on travel are lifting now, so go ahead with your plans for taking a short journey.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): You have moments of depression. Don't try to cover them up with an "act." Banish them completely by getting out and doing things which stimulate your mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Morning hours may be somewhat on the dull side but momentum picks up after noon; should lead to bright prospects business-wise and socially.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Your judgment vindicated. A message from someone "in the know" will confirm your own beliefs and consequent decisions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Curb your natural inclination toward unconventional behavior. Indiscretion now could lead to trouble later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Your imagination highly stimulated and, while you may not capitalize on new ideas immediately, they should be highly productive in the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Be especially cooperative with associates. Good teamwork will produce better results than lone-wolf action.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Sometimes your impulsiveness gets you into trouble, but some spur-of-the-moment activities launched now could have surprisingly good results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Persistence will be the key to advancing your personal plans. Keep trying and friends will rally 'round and give their support.

YOU BORN TODAY are one of the most idealistic individuals in the entire zodiacal spectrum and, more importantly, you do not keep your ideals in the deep recesses of your mind, but take them out of the conceptual stage and build them into tangible and usable forms. Your attitude toward money is paradoxical — depending on the development of your character and the height of the spiritual plane you reach. The well-developed Piscean, for instance, can, within his means, of course, become a great philanthropist or, in different to his innate gifts, become self-indulgent and a reckless spender. The true Piscean, however, is extremely versatile, well-poised, warm-hearted and fitted for success along many lines. LONDON (AP) — Peter Davis and his wife collect old nylon stockings and tights — and their collection has earned them the thanks of a stream of motorists. They live at Hockliffe, Bedfordshire, north of London, and the road outside their front door is straight and downhill. Said Davis: "Everyone puts their foot down — and snap. The fanbelt breaks." Awakened by worried motorists who ask the way to the nearest garage — it's six miles away — the Davises produce their stockings. For the trouble is often a broken fan belt and the old stockings make a good temporary substitute. They often have five or six callers a week.

Zippering Along

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) — A zipper for the most part opens and closes the shortest distance between two points, but at Scovill's Apparel Fasteners division they do some lengthy zippering. The longest continuous zipper designed here was 900 inches, made for the covering on a new spacecraft. Other oversize zippers have been a 675-inch unit for a M-A-S-H-type Army mobile field tent, and radar dome covers that extend up to 300 inches.

The first commercially practical zippers are believed to have been used in rubber galoshes in 1923, and while they still have their greatest use in apparel, zippers are utilized in many unique applications. Concrete pilings, for example, are made by pouring concrete into zippered molds, waiting for it to set and then unzipping the molds.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — A poll is being taken by the Pennsylvania Public Television Network to let viewers say what kinds of programs they want to see on public TV.

The Pennsylvania survey is the first of its kind in the nation, says the Public Broadcasting Service, which says it is both encouraging the study and suggesting the same approach be tried in other states.

Network officials say about 90,000 questionnaires are being mailed to Pennsylvania's public TV subscribers in the seven areas served by the seven stations that comprise PPTN.

In addition, the network is seeking the general public's opinion by buying space for the questionnaires in those areas' newspapers and in Pennsylvania issues of TV Guide magazine, officials say.

They say the survey basically seeks to determine the kinds of state or local programs viewers think PPTN should carry in coming years and if its now-limited statewide programming increases.

But they say the survey also hopes to give program executives at each station a better idea of what viewers in each area want in both local and national public TV programming.

"The way we've phrased the questionnaire is to ask viewers which programs do they feel 'are the most important,'" said David programs on the network," Leonard, general manager of he said.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Make good use of that aggressive personality you have. Someone with political contacts and "pull" could be very useful if you take the initiative.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Your spirit of restlessness and nervous energy continues, but don't let it lead you to erratic behavior. You could land in "hot water."

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Rumors now circulating could undermine your confidence if you let them. Use that optimism and good judgement of yours and ignore them.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Restrictions on travel are lifting now, so go ahead with your plans for taking a short journey.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): You have moments of depression. Don't try to cover them up with an "act." Banish them completely by getting out and doing things which stimulate your mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Morning hours may be somewhat on the dull side but momentum picks up after noon; should lead to bright prospects business-wise and socially.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Your judgment vindicated. A message from someone "in the know" will confirm your own beliefs and consequent decisions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): Curb your natural inclination toward unconventional behavior. Indiscretion now could lead to trouble later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Your imagination highly stimulated and, while you may not capitalize on new ideas immediately, they should be highly productive in the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Be especially cooperative with associates. Good teamwork will produce better results than lone-wolf action.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Sometimes your impulsiveness gets you into trouble, but some spur-of-the-moment activities launched now could have surprisingly good results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Persistence will be the key to advancing your personal plans. Keep trying and friends will rally 'round and give their support.

YOU BORN TODAY are one of the most idealistic individuals in the entire zodiacal spectrum and, more importantly, you do not keep your ideals in the deep recesses of your mind, but take them out of the conceptual stage and build them into tangible and usable forms. Your attitude toward money is paradoxical — depending on the development of your character and the height of the spiritual plane you reach. The well-developed Piscean, for instance, can, within his means, of course, become a great philanthropist or, indifferent to his innate gifts, become self-indulgent and a reckless spender. The true Piscean, however, is extremely versatile, well-poised, warm-hearted and fitted for success along many lines. Birthdate of: George Washington, 1st Pres., U.S.A.; Frederic Chopin, Fr. composer.

IOWA SUN AND FOG — Windmill is seen as the sun burns through the fog on a central Iowa farm. Wind and sun are being as alternatives to petroleum power sources.

Aaron Shrugs
Off Blasts

ATLANTA (AP) — Hank Aaron, Atlanta's 40-year-old slugger on the threshold of baseball's all-time home run record, says the criticism surrounding the Braves' decision to withhold him from the starting lineup in the opening series won't make him change his mind.

"No chance," Aaron said, shaking his head Wednesday night when asked if he might go ahead and start one of the games in the three-game series at Cincinnati April 4-7.

The decision, announced Saturday by Bill Bartholomay, chairman of the Braves, has triggered considerable criticism from sports writers around the country and particularly in the New York area.

"I look at it from the standpoint of no matter what I do I'll get criticism," he said during an interview at a $25-a-ticket function that raised $10,150 for the Hank Aaron Scholarship Fund.

"The people of Atlanta are the people I have to please," he said. "I'd rather get criticism in New York than in my home town. I can take it there. We don't go there but a couple of times a year."

The Braves said Aaron would be available for pinch-hitting duties in Cincinnati, but that he won't start a game until the home opener against Los Angeles on April 8. That game launches an 11-game stand for the Braves and club officials are hoping he will belt Nos. 714 and 715 during that time to pass the mark of the immortal Babe Ruth.

"What the heck," Aaron said. "You have to look at it from the financial standpoint of the Braves. And, besides, I haven't been doing too well early in the season for the past five years or so."

Aaron has never homered in a season opener. He has sat out only three of them during his career — in 1954, his rookie campaign, 1959 and 1965.

There has been public criticism that the Braves will be playing only a 159-game schedule without Aaron in the first three games, making those three little more than exhibitions.

Aaron pointed out that he played only 120 games last year and wondered if that made the other 42 exhibitions. "Let's face it," he said. "I have to play when I think I can help the club and I can't do it by playing every day. I'm just not as strong as I used to be."

Net-Shooting Cannon Snare Birds

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — When Missouri Conservation Department agents go hunting wild turkeys, they take along three cannons, some fish nets and a sack of corn. They are out to trap turkeys, not kill them.

First they locate a clearing in the forest where there are plenty of gobblers. They set up and zero in their small cannons, which look something like a mortar and fire a 'cannister' containing a 30-by-50-foot fishing net with lead weights attached. Then they bait the area with corn, and wait.

When several of the big birds congregate—bang! The cannons boom, the nets drop and the gobblers are snared.

Wild turkeys are native to Missouri and most are found in the mountainous areas of the Ozarks in the southern part of the state. A majority of the trapped turkeys are transplanted to other areas of Missouri, but some are exported.

Since 1960 Missouri has been trading some of its turkeys to other states for fowl or fish Missouri needs. The state has swapped gobblers for grouse with Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Minnesota, for pheasants with Iowa and for prairie chickens with Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska. And last year 24 turkeys were sent to the Tennessee Valley Authority in return for about 500,000 striped bass. Between 250 and 300 gobblers have been exported to help other states restock.

A 20-year-old restocking program has brought Missouri near the top nationally in wild turkey population, says Dan Dickneite, who heads the trapping program for the Conservation Department.

In 1952, there were only about 2,500 of the big birds left in the state. Now there are about 20,000 spread over 75 of the state's 114 counties. Hunting is permitted in 63 counties. During a three-week season starting in late April, hunters bagged almost 6,000 last year.

The turkey-exporting program probably will be phased out unless another state has something Missouri wants and needs turkeys in exchange, Dickneite says.

He figures its costs an average of about $350 to trap and ship each turkey.

"Because of their high-strung nature, wild turkeys can't be confined long so we ship them by air when we can," says Joel Vance of the department's public relations staff.

Most of the trapped birds now are released in areas which would have been considered marginal or unsuitable a few years ago, trappers say. But the turkeys have proved highly adaptable and have spread naturally into areas where the experts once said they probably couldn't survive.

Vance says the key to the success of the turkey restocking program has been the use of wild birds as feed stock. Hybrid or farm birds couldn't adapt to life in the wild.

He figures its costs an average of about $350 to trap and ship each turkey.

"Because of their high-strung nature, wild turkeys can't be confined long so we ship them by air when we can," says Joel Vance of the department's public relations staff.

Most of the trapped birds now are released in areas which would have been considered marginal or unsuitable a few years ago, trappers say. But the turkeys have proved highly adaptable and have spread naturally into areas where the experts once said they probably couldn't survive.

Vance says the key to the success of the turkey restocking program has been the use of wild birds as feed stock. Hybrid or farm birds couldn't adapt to life in the wild.

Wittenberg, Muskingum Favorites

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Co-champions Wittenberg and Muskingum head a talent-heavy Southern Division while Ohio Northern is a solid favorite in the Northern Division when the Ohio Conference opens its basketball tournament Thursday.

The champion automatically qualifies for the National Collegiate Athletic Association College Division Great Lakes Regional Tournament.

Four games, two in each division, open the OC Tournament Thursday night.

Four of the first five finishers in the regular season conference race, Wittenberg, Muskingum, No. 4 Capital and fifthplace Marietta, are in the Southern Division playoffs at Denison University.

Ohio Northern, the thirdplace finisher in the regular season, is top seeded in the Northern Division at BaldwinWallace College.

A Northern Division tripleheader is on tap Thursday. Mount Union meets BaldwinWallace at 5 p.m., Wooster and Kenyon play at 7 and Heidelberg faces Oberlin at 9.

Ohio Northern will play the Wooster-Kenyon winner Friday night.

Three games also are scheduled in the Southern Division Thursday. Muskingum and Denison battle at 5 p.m., Capital tangles with Otterbein at 7 p.m. and Marietta draws Ohio Wesleyan at 9 p.m.

Wittenberg awaits the victor between Capital and Otterbein Friday night.

The semifinals are Friday night and the division finals Saturday night.

The championship game will be played Tuesday night at BaldwinWallace. Wooster won the 1973 tournament title.

Captain of the Air Force Academy cross-country team is Bill Frank. He attended high school at the Travis Air Force Base, Calif.

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

Giant picture books are now flooding the children's room. "The Great Escape" resembles the fast-paced cartoon adventures of television with a simple plot and plentiful humor. Scores of baby alligators escape pethood in a search for freedom that is fraught with danger. The book is by Peter Lippman. Pure delight is "The Silly Book of Animals" by Addie. Creepy crawlies and creatures with exaggerated shapes leap out from every page. Try another joke book if you don't mind listening to their easily memorized lines. They are found in "The Grin and Giggle Book" by Robert Pierce.

The combination of learning while having fun is successful when Walt Disney's familiar friends teach worlds of words in "The Giant Walt Disney World Book." Richard Scarry accomplishes the same results in his "Best Word Book Ever." The gentle pictures of animals in Jan Pfloug's "Animal Friends and Neighbors" are simply presented with the detail on their history located in the appendix. Consideration and helpfulness are the watchwords in the new Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy books. Included are hints on safe street crossing, kindness to animals and taking turns. Circles are found everywhere in Sesame Street's newest "Cookie Monster's Circle Book." The muppets make learning a pleasure as usual.

Just for fun are the oversized tales of "The Fourteen Bears in Summer and Winter" by Scott. The homey play of this lovable family make it a good choice for bedtime reading. To hold your child's interest along comes "The Mouse with the Musical Ear" by Adelaide Holl. A lonely cowboy and a guitar find each other with a satisfyingly happy ending. And no coaxing will be necessary to settle down for a session with Mary Poppins as told Walt Disney style. "Stone Soup", a folk tale popularized by Captain Kangaroo is another comfortable story.

Soviets Test New Missile In Pacific

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says the Soviet Union has testfired a big new SSX18 missile with multiple warheads into the Pacific.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said Wednesday it was unclear whether the current Soviet missile tests were timed to coincide with the opening in Geneva of a second round of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

"I don't think we are in a position" to reach any judgment on that question with certainty, Friedheim told newsmen.

Friedheim said the Soviet SSX18 was fired more than 5,000 miles Tuesday from Tyuratam in central Russia to a point about 400 miles north of Midway Island.

He said "several re-entry vehicles" were spotted by U.S. observers, indicating that the missile carried multiple independently targetable warheads.

The firing came during the second round of new missile tests from within the Soviet Union in less than a month. The Soviets said earlier this week that a series of such tests would be conducted until March 10.

In previous tests, the Russians have fired as many as five separate warheads with an SSX18, a huge missile apparently being developed as successor to the Soviet Union's largest operational missile, the SS9.

The SALT agreement on limitation of nuclear weapons allows both the United States and the Soviet Union to improve their missiles, although the numbers of launches are limited on both sides.

The United States already is mounting multiple independently targetable warheads on its Minuteman III intercontinental ballistic missiles and its Poseidon submarine-launched missiles.
